

IRONDALE MILL SHUT DOWN AND NOT A WHEEL TURNING

Manager Banfield Was Compelled to Give Up This Morning.

SIX STRIKE BREAKERS CAUGHT

And One of the Them Given a Beating—All Agreed to Quit.

FIGHT TOOK PLACE IN THE MILL

In Which a Union Man Was Struck With a Stone—Strikers Are Exultant Over Their Victory—Pickets on Constant Duty.

Irondale, Aug. 27.—(Special)—Manager Banfield's efforts to keep the mill here in operation have been balked and this morning he was compelled to give up his task. Not a single wheel is turning and the strikers are jubilant over their victory.

While six of the men who have been at work in the mill were on their way to the plant this morning they were headed off by a party of union men, who refused to let them proceed. A fight ensued in which one of the non-union men received a blow in the face, but did not injure him seriously.

After considerable parley the strike breakers agreed to go back home, which they did. As there has only been one crew at work since Sunday, which was mainly composed of the six men held up by the strikers this morning, the force was so badly crippled by their absence that Manager Banfield could not get the mill started.

Shortly before noon today as a party of strikers were walking down the railroad track past the mill, Ira Householder, one of the strike breakers, who was standing on the inside, cast a slurring remark at Homer McLane, one of the number, who immediately went after Householder. A fight was soon in progress and as Householder found that he was getting the worst of the struggle he picked up a stone, which he hurled at McLane, striking him in the head. Fortunately, the blow was a glancing one and the man was not badly hurt.

The crowd made a rush for Householder, but before hands could be laid on him Banfield and several others stopped the trouble.

A number of Wellsville men are here and are assisting the pickets, who remain on almost constant duty. Any effort to import men will doubtless result seriously.

A HEATED ARGUMENT

BETWEEN SHERIFF NORAGON AND HARRY GRIFFITHS.

Wellsville Strikers Move to New Headquarters—Quiet at the Mill.

Sheriff Noragon left Wellsville for Lisbon last night, but did not take the non-union men along with him to work in the mill there, as it was reported he proposed doing. Last evening the sheriff and Organizer Griffiths became engaged in a heated argument.

It has all along been the opinion of Organizer Griffiths that the sheriff has been lingering in Wellsville solely at the instance of Mayor Dennis. Mr. Griffiths placed no credence in the rumor that Sheriff Noragon would make an attempt to import men into the Lisbon mill, but he has openly accused the sheriff of being antagonistic to the strikers and partial to the non-union men. This has been denied by Noragon, but last evening as a result of his controversy with Mr. Griffiths he declared himself in the presence of a large crowd.

The strikers have fitted up their room and moved their tables, chairs and other paraphernalia today to their present headquarters. Many of the men have secured positions out of town, while others are working at odd jobs about their home city. Organizer Evans is yet in Lisbon, and the situation in Wellsville has lapsed into extreme tranquility.

Various reports concerning the mill are in circulation, but it is not known that there has been any change whatever in the past several days. The same force is at work and none of the non-union men have quit, nor have there been any desertions in the union ranks.

The reports from Irondale that the mill there is about to shut down because of the men leaving who went back to work when Manager Banfield started the plant have given the Wellsville strikers great encouragement.

PICKETS TENTING

LISBON STRIKERS MAKE THEMSELVES COMFORTABLE.

Now Believed That the Company Has No Men in the Mill.

Lisbon, Aug. 27.—(Special)—Half a dozen small tents were put up last night to protect the strikers' pickets, who are watching the Lisbon tin plate mill, from the chilly air. No non-unionists were brought to town last night.

The strikers do not intend to relax their efforts to keep strike breakers out. It is now the general belief that the company has no men in the mill and made the bluff at starting to test the strikers' strength, and that when the men get tired of watching and waiting and leave the way clear the management will endeavor to rush in as many non-union men as possible. Fires are still banked under the boilers and rolls.

The two men who were guarded by strikers yesterday as suspected non-unionists proved themselves innocent and were allowed to go on their way.

The reports that strike breakers were to be brought in today have so far proven baseless. The town is very quiet this afternoon. All pickets are on duty as usual. The office force of the mill was turned into a picket guard last night and from the inside watched as the strikers did from without. What they were watching for is not known.

Sheriff Noragon returned last night from Wellsville. He came in a one-seated buggy.

BARBERS' SCALE

THE JOURNEMEN WILL SOON FORMULATE ONE.

New Union Looking Up Headquarters. Committee on Constitution Named.

The new union of the journeymen barbers held a well attended meeting at Allen's shop last evening.

The organization has a committee at work looking up permanent quarters, and within the next week the members hope to be settled in a hall of their own.

A committee consisting of Robert Lacey, F. C. Gehrs, C. E. Douglass, Albert Allison and William Catland were appointed at last night's meeting to draft a constitution and by-laws for the government of the local organization. This committee was instructed to act at once, and it is thought they will be able to make a report at the next meeting.

As soon as the constitution is in shape and has been adopted the union will turn its attention to the matter of a scale of prices. The work so far laid out will require several weeks to complete, and it is hardly likely the scale will be presented to the proprietors for their signature before the middle of September. It is not expected that any of the proprietors will refuse to sign.

The question of turning out on Labor day was brought up, but no definite action taken for the reason that all shops will be open during the forenoon of that day.

In Jail at Lisbon.

Lisbon, Aug. 27.—Dr. Groner, a Wellsville physician, is in jail here. Last Monday he was arrested for failure to keep the peace and was placed under $400 bond to do so. He was given three days in which to file the necessary bond, but apparently he treated the matter lightly and made no effort to secure bond, or, if he did so was unsuccessful.

May Not Recover.

Lisbon, Aug. 27.—William Crawford, of Elkton, was taken to Pittsburgh by Dr. J. N. Calhoun, where he was operated upon in Mercy hospital for a tumor in the throat. The operation was a very serious one and as Mr. Crawford is 70 years of age, Dr. Calhoun fears he may not recover.

CAIN COMMITTED TO WORKHOUSE

Notorious Local Character Captured While Trying to Enter a House.

HIS RECORD AGAINST HIM

It Is Claimed He Has Been Persecuting And Terrifying a Woman. Fighters Plead Guilty And Pay Their Fines—Police Court Cases.

The notorious "Crip" Cain is in jail again and before the week is over he will occupy quarters in the Canton workhouse. His arrest occurred about 3 o'clock this morning and was brought about by Officer Mahoney and Patrolman Woods. He was captured in Dewdrop alley while attempting to force an entrance into the home of Elizabeth Sheets.

At about 1 o'clock this morning the officers learned that Cain was drunk and creating a disturbance at the home of the Sheets woman and an effort was then made to get hold of him. He saw the officers coming and took to his heels. Owing to the darkness the fellow made his escape, but returned to the house a few hours later and renewed hostilities.

This time the officers were more cautious, and again making their way to the scene of the disturbance they surrounded Cain before he was aware of their presence. He made an attempt at resistance, when Patrolman Woods seized him by the throat and choked him into submission.

On his way to the Diamond Cain felt in his pockets and then informed his captors that he had lost a dollar. While Mahoney held the prisoner Woods went back to look for the money, but was unable to find it. Cain made no effort to break away from Mahoney, but it was afterward believed he made a pretense of losing the money in the hope that an opportunity might thus be afforded for him to escape.

Cain it is said, has for several months past been torturing the Sheets woman whom he repeatedly assaulted until he has learned to look upon him with abject fear. Only a few weeks ago she had the fellow arrested in Justice Rose's court, but on his promise to stay away from her home he was given his freedom. When the officers found him last night he was trying to break down the door of the Sheets woman's house.

The police claim that Cain is a worthless vagrant and he has a record of being a dangerous character. This morning Mayor Davidson fined the culprit $10 and costs and committed him to the workhouse.

Charles Bowman was arrested near the power house last night by Patrolman Woods for drunkenness. He was fined $1 and costs this morning, which he promptly paid.

Robert Maxwell, John Brant, George Wilkinson, William Lawson, Brail Larkins and Toby Burke, who were arrested for fighting on Second street Saturday night, appeared before Mayor Davidson last evening and pleaded guilty. They were fined $2 and costs each, all paying their assessments.

IMPROVEMENTS WANTED

West End Citizens Will Petition Council to Attend to Their Wishes.

A petition signed by upwards of 100 residents of the West End will be presented to council tonight, asking that a cinder path or board walk be built from the present paving to the city limits.

Albert Pierce, a prominent property owner of the Pleasant Heights district, started the movement, and when it was once under way there was no lack of support.

The improvement is one that has long been needed, and should the council act favorably upon the request the residents will be greatly benefited, as it is almost impossible to travel the road in rough weather.

Another matter that will likely be brought up at the same time is the question of at least two arc lights along the Lisbon road.

Boys' Cases Disposed Of.

Lisbon, Aug. 27.—(Special)—Of the four boys arrested for stealing old rubber, three were turned over by Mayor Farrell to the probate court and will probably be taken to the Industrial school. John Estell, the oldest of the four, pleaded guilty and was fined $5 and sent to jail for 10 days.

LOST HIS MONEY BY GAMBLING

And Young Fred Grewe, of Beaver Falls, Wanted to End His Existence.

HE TRIED CARBOLIC ACID

Was in the Act of Drinking It When a Companion Snatched the Vial Away—Escaped Death But His Lips And Chin Were Badly Burned.

Because he had lost $3.35 in a game of cards, a young German named Fred Grewe, who has been working at Beaver Falls, tried to kill himself last night in an alley in the rear of a Market street saloon by the poison route. He was frustrated in his attempt to successfully carry out his purpose, but was terribly burned about the lips and chin by the acid which he was in the act of swallowing when the bottle containing the deadly drug was snatched away from him.

Grewe came to East Liverpool Saturday night and since that time had been "doing the town" to the best of his ability. He is a singer of more than ordinary merit and on the night of his arrival here he became the leader of a quartet which furnished music for several Second street liquid emporiums. On Sunday Grewe was at Rock Springs and introduced himself as an aeronaut, claiming he was scheduled to make a balloon ascension last night.

Just what he meant when he made the above statement is to be conjectured, but judging from the fact that he made an attempt to get off the earth for keeps, it is evident the German considered that the poison route was more adaptable to his particular method of ascension than an aerial machine.

One of Grewe's faults is his appetite for liquor, but this is not all—he dearly loves to gamble. This was the cause for his foolhardy act in attempting to grieve his mother of a son. He said he was sorry he did not succeed in his purpose, and it is possible there are others who would second his motion. But it can't be helped now. Grewe is alive and well and perhaps for some time to come will be able to lose his money in any kind of a gambling game just as in the past.

When the young German came to East Liverpool he says he had $40 or more. He made several exhibits of his pocketbook on his arrival here and did not experience the least trouble in gaining an acquaintance. He met "friends" he never dreamed of, and in less than an hour after leaving the train which brought him here, Grewe thought he had certainly reached a point about as near the promised land as was possible for him to do so. Everybody he treated fell immediately in love with the young man and he had a royal good time—as long as his money lasted.

All of Sunday Grewe "blew himself," and when Monday came he found his financial resources somewhat run down at the heel. However, he continued to "lush" and late yesterday afternoon he got to playing cards in a saloon. On counting his cash when he started in the game Grewe found that he had $3.75. For a time he met with considerable luck and a smile of extreme gratification stole over his features as he gathered in the shekels.

It was not long before his luck began to change and instead of him reaching out for the money, as he had previously done, his fellow gamblers did so instead. The game continued until nightfall was close at hand, when the luckless German was compelled to put his last quarter on the card table. The deal went around; the bet was made and then came the blow that almost killed Grewe. He lost and the other fellows got his money.

During the progress of the game the fellow had submitted quite frequently to an interspersion in the shape of a "bracer," and at the conclusion he was well night "corned." After making a thorough search of the pockets of his clothing Grewe turned to the fellows with whom he had been gaming and said: "Well, boys, I guess I will have to quit the game, and I might as well quit everything else."

Then starting out through the rear door, Grewe made his way to the alley. One of the party at the card table was led to suspect that the German might attempt to do himself harm, and without hesitating followed him out the door. As he reached the back yard he saw Grewe raise a vial to his lips and, running to the German's side, jerked it away from him. As he did so the liquid in the bottle, which proved to be carbolic acid, was sent flying, a portion of it alighting on the would-be suicide's lips and chin. He did not have a chance to swallow any of the poison, however, and though great blisters arose on the spots of flesh which the acid had come in contact with, the German was foiled in his rash desire.

He was at first indignant at the man who saved his life, but later when he became sobered up he expressed gratitude that his plans had miscarried. He left on the train this morning for Beaver Falls, after having borrowed enough money to pay his car fare. The man said he had been discharged at the shop at which he had been working in Beaver Falls and expected to go to Youngstown.

BELIEVED TO BE CRAZY

ZIMRI WHITACRE, OF WELLSVILLE, LODGED IN JAIL.

Fired Several Charges From a Shot Gun—Tried to Shoot Police.

Zimri Whitacre, an old resident of Wellsville, startled the natives in the vicinity of Second street, in that city, last night by firing several charges from a shot gun. The police made their way to his home, but he refused to allow them to enter and the door was forced in.

As the officers stepped into the house they found a woman, who was being entertained by Whitacre. The gun, which was a double-barrel, was standing in the corner and Whitacre made a grab for it, but was pushed aside. One of the barrels was found to be loaded.

Whitaker and the woman were both locked up and are yet in jail pending a hearing. The man is believed to be crazy.

A few days ago Mrs. Mountford received a message advising her of the death of her father in England, and her visit to that country is for the purpose of settling the estate of her father.

Mrs. Mountford and another sister, now residing in England, are the only heirs to a vast fortune left by her father.

Discovery Likely to Frustrate the Plans of Burglars For Work.

THE SORT THAT THEY USE

In Safe Blowing Operations Found in Rear of Sixth Street Shop.

THE STUFF WAS TOSSED ABOUT

But Did Not Explode, or Serious Results Might Have Been Chronicled. Authorities Will Make a Thorough Investigation of the Matter.

By the unearthing of five dynamite cartridges in the rear of Pryor's barber shop this morning, it is likely the plans of a gang of burglars who contemplated operating here have been interfered with at least for the present.

Mr. Pryor, who occupies a business room in the Blackmore building on Sixth street, was engaged about 9 o'clock this morning in clearing a quantity of rubbish away from the back door when he came upon an object which at first glance excited his curiosity. The gentleman picked up and upon observing it closely concluded it was some sort of an explosive, and going to the front threw it into the street.

Luckily the cartridge did not explode and was gathered up and taken back into the shop. Thinking there might be more he summoned Frank Thomas, an employee, and a search was made. The men secured two more of the peculiar looking objects, then the police department was informed, and Officer Stafford, who is an expert in these matters, came to the scene to confine the search.

After digging for some time Stafford unearthed two more of the cartridges. The officer pronounced the sticks to be the sort used by cracksmen in blowing open safes. They are about three inches in length and 2½ inches in diameter. The tube is made of zinc and in the end is fastened a percussion cap of the regulation make. The fuse is attached just beneath this cap and over the whole is placed a brittle composition which is supposed to be water proof.

So curious were the men at the barber shop that Thomas, who found the second stick, was determined to see what they were made of. He threw the thing at Arthur Hymes, who is employed at a clothing store across the street. It did not explode, but Hymes considers he had a very narrow escape.

The cartridges were taken to police headquarters, where they were placed in a secure and safe place.

The authorities will make a thorough investigation of the matter, but it is not likely anything will develop, as the parties who put the dynamite there will in all probability lie low for some time to come.

One of the bombs was later taken to the fire station, where it was cut open and disclosed all the properties which go to make up a perfect dynamite cartridge.

HOMESTEAD FLUNKED

Manager Cancelled Games Scheduled for Here—Winters A. C., of Pittsburgh, Coming.

The Homestead base ball team, which was scheduled to play here with the local team on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, has flunked. A telegram received from the manager last evening stated that owing to the absence of some of the players of the team it would be necessary to cancel the games.

This morning's Pittsburgh papers state that the Homestead team will play at home the three days it was expected to be here, and hence, it appears that instead of there being a shortage of players, the manager of the team was led to call the games off here because of the fear that their reputation would be jarred. This is what Manager Walsh claims, and it certainly looks that way.

The Winters Athletic team, of Pittsburgh, has been secured to take the place of the Homestead team. This nine is one of the Smoky City's strong ones, and will doubtless be an able antagonist for the locals.

EVENING NEWS REVIEW.

18TH YEAR. NO 62

EAST LIVERPOOL, O., TUESDAY, AUGUST 27, 1901.

TWO CENTS.

IRONDALE MILL SHUT DOWN AND NOT A WHEEL TURNING

Manager Banfield Was Compelled to Give Up This Morning.

SIX STRIKE BREAKERS CAUGHT

And One of the Them Given a Beating—All Agreed to Quit.

FIGHT TOOK PLACE IN THE MILL

In Which a Union Man Was Struck With a Stone—Strikers Are Exultant Over Their Victory—Pickets on Constant Duty.

Irondale, Aug. 27.—(Special)—Manager Banfield's efforts to keep the mill here in operation have been balked and this morning he was compelled to give up his task. Not a single wheel is turning and the strikers are jubilant over their victory.

While six of the men who have been at work in the mill were on their way to the plant this morning they were headed off by a party of union men, who refused to let them proceed. A fight ensued in which one of the non-union men received a blow in the face, but did not injure him seriously.

After considerable parley the strike breakers agreed to go back home, which they did. As there has only been one crew at work since Sunday, which was mainly composed of the six men held up by the strikers this morning, the force was so badly crippled by their absence that Manager Banfield could not get the mill started.

Shortly before noon today as a party of strikers were walking down the railroad track past the mill, Ira Householder, one of the strike breakers, who was standing on the inside, cast a slurring remark at Homer McLane, one of the number, who immediately went after Householder. A fight was soon in progress and as Householder found that he was getting the worst of the struggle he picked up a stone, which he hurled at McLane striking him in the head. Fortunately, the blow was a glancing one and the man was not badly hurt.

The crowd made a rush for Householder, but before hands could be laid on him Banfield and several others stopped the trouble.

A number of Wellsville men are here and are assisting the pickets, who remain on almost constant duty. Any effort to import men will doubtless result seriously.

A HEATED ARGUMENT

BETWEEN SHERIFF NORAGON AND HARRY GRIFFITHS.

Wellsville Strikers Move to New Headquarters—Quiet at the Mill.

Sheriff Noragon left Wellsville for Lisbon last night, but did not take the non-union men along with him to work in the mill there, as it was reported he proposed doing. Last evening the sheriff and Organizer Griffiths became engaged in a heated argument.

It has all along been the opinion of Organizer Griffiths that the sheriff has been lingering in Wellsville solely at the instance of Mayor Dennis. Mr. Griffiths placed no credence in the rumor that Sheriff Noragon would make an attempt to import men into the Lisbon mill, but he has openly accused the sheriff of being antagonistic to the strikers and partial to the non-union men. This has been denied by Noragon, but last evening as a result of his controversy with Mr. Griffiths he declared himself in the presence of a large crowd.

The strikers have fitted up their room and moved their tables, chairs and other paraphernalia today to their present headquarters. Many of the men have secured positions out of town, while others are working at odd jobs about their home city. Organizer Evans is yet in Lisbon, and the situation in Wellsville has lapsed into extreme tranquility.

Various reports concerning the mill are in circulation, but it is not known that there has been any change whatever in the past several days. The

The reports from Irondale that the mill there is about to shut down because of the men leaving who went back to work when Manager Banfield started the plant have given the Wellsville strikers great encouragement.

PICKETS TENTING

LISBON STRIKERS MAKE THEMSELVES COMFORTABLE.

Now Believed That the Company Has No Men in the Mill.

Lisbon, Aug. 27.—(Special)—Half a dozen small tents were put up last night to protect the strikers' pickets, who are watching the Lisbon tin plate mill, from the chilly air. No non-unionists were brought to town last night.

The strikers do not intend to relax their efforts to keep strike breakers out. It is now the general belief that the company has no men in the mill and made the bluff at starting to test the strikers' strength, and that when the men get tired of watching and waiting and leave the way clear the management will endeavor to rush in as many non-union men as possible. Fires are still banked under the boilers and rolls.

The two men who were guarded by strikers yesterday as suspected non-unionists proved themselves innocent and were allowed to go on their way.

The reports that strike breakers were to be brought in today have so far proven baseless. The town is very quiet this afternoon. All pickets are on duty as usual. The office force of the mill was turned into a picket guard last night and from the inside watched as the strikers did from without. What they were watching for is not known.

Sheriff Noragon returned last night from Wellsville. He came in a one-seated buggy.

BARBERS' SCALE

THE JOURNEYMEN WILL SOON FORMULATE ONE.

New Union Looking Up Headquarters. Committee on Constitution Named.

The new union of the journeymen barbers held a well attended meeting at Allen's shop last evening.

The organization has a committee at work looking up permanent quarters, and within the next week the members hope to be settled in a hall of their own.

A committee consisting of Robert Lacey, F. C. Gehrs, C. E. Douglass, Albert Allison and William Catland were appointed at last night's meeting to draft a constitution and by-laws for the government of the local organization. This committee was instructed to act at once, and it is thought they will be able to make a report at the next meeting.

As soon as the constitution is in shape and has been adopted the union will turn its attention to the matter of a scale of prices. The work so far laid out will require several weeks to complete, and it is hardly likely the scale will be presented to the proprietors for their signature before the middle of September. It is not expected that any of the proprietors will refuse to sign.

The question of turning out on Labor day was brought up, but no definite action taken for the reason that all shops will be open during the forenoon of that day.

In Jail at Lisbon.

Lisbon, Aug. 27.—Dr. Groner, a Wellsville physician, is in jail here. Last Monday he was arrested for failure to keep the peace and was placed under $400 bond to do so. He was given three days in which to file the necessary bond, but apparently he treated the matter lightly and made no effort to secure bond, or, if he did so was unsuccessful.

However, he continued to "lunch" and late yesterday afternoon he got to playing cards in a saloon. On counting his cash when he started in the game Grewe found that he had $3.75. For a time he met with considerable luck and a smile of extreme gratification stole over his features as he gathered in the shekel.

It was not long before his luck began to change and instead of him reaching out for the money, as he had previously done, his fellow gamblers did so instead. The game continued until nightfall was close at hand, when the luckless German was compelled to put his last quarter on the card table. The deal went around; the bet was made and then came the blow that almost killed Grewe. He lost and the other fellows got his money.

During the progress of the game the fellow had submitted quite frequently to an interspersion in the shape of a "bracer," and at the conclusion he was well nigh "corned." After making a thorough search of the pockets of his clothing Grewe turned to the fellows with whom he had been gaming and said: "Well, boys, I guess I will have to quit the game, and I might as well quit everything else."

Then starting out through the rear door, Grewe made his way to the alley. One of the party at the card table was led to suspect that the German might attempt to do himself harm, and without hesitating followed him out the door. As he reached the back yard he saw Grewe raise a vial to his lips and, running to the German's side, jerked it away from him. As he did so the liquid in the bottle, which proved to be carbolic acid, was sent flying, a portion of it alighting on the would-be suicide's lips and chin. He did not have a chance to swallow any of the poison, however, and though great blisters arose on the spots of flesh which the acid had come in contact with, the German was foiled in his rash desire.

He was at first indignant at the man who saved his life, but later when he became sobered up he expressed gratitude that his plans had miscarried. He left on the train this morning for Beaver Falls, after having borrowed enough money to pay his car fare. The man said he had been discharged at the shop at which he had been working in Beaver Falls and expected to go to Youngstown.

BELIEVED TO BE CRAZY

ZIMRI WHITACRE, OF WELLSVILLE, LODGED IN JAIL.

Fired Several Charges From a Shot Gun—Tried to Shoot Police.

Zimri Whitacre, an old resident of Wellsville, startled the natives in the vicinity of Second street, in that city, last night by firing several charges from a shot gun. The police made their way to his home, but he refused to allow them to enter and the door was forced in.

As the officers stepped into the house they found a woman, who was being entertained by Whitacre. The gun, which was a double-barrel, was standing in the corner and Whitacre made a grab for it, but was pushed aside. One of the barrels was found to be loaded.

Whitaker and the woman were both locked up and are yet in jail pending a hearing. The man is believed to be crazy.

Discovery Likely to Frustrate the Plans of Burglars For Work.

THE SORT THAT THEY USE

In Safe Blowing Operations Found in Rear of Sixth Street Shop.

THE STUFF WAS TOSSED ABOUT

But Did Not Explode, or Serious Results Might Have Been Chronicled. Authorities Will Make a Thorough Investigation of the Matter.

By the unearthing of five dynamite cartridges in the rear of Pryor's barber shop this morning, it is likely the plans of a gang of burglars who contemplated operating here have been interfered with at least for the present.

Mr. Pryor, who occupies a business room in the Blackmore building on Sixth street, was engaged about 9 o'clock this morning in clearing a quantity of rubbish away from the back door when he came upon an object which at first glance excited his curiosity. The gentleman picked up and upon observing it closely concluded it was some sort of an explosive, and going to the front threw it into the street.

Luckily the cartridge did not explode and was gathered up and taken back into the shop. Thinking there might be more he summoned Frank Thomas, an employee, and a search was made. The men secured two more of the peculiar looking objects, then the police department was informed, and Officer Stafford, who is an expert in these matters, came to the scene to continue the search.

After digging for some time Stafford unearthed two more of the cartridges. The officer pronounced the sticks to be the sort used by cracksmen in blowing open safes. They are about three inches in length and 2½ inches in diameter. The tube is made of zinc and in the end is fastened a percussion cap of the regulation make. The fuse is attached just beneath this cap and over the whole is placed a brittle composition which is supposed to be water proof.

So curious were the men at the barber shop that Thomas, who found the second stick, was determined to see what they were made of. He threw the thing at Arthur Hymes, who is employed at a clothing store across the street. It did not explode, but Hymes considers he had a very narrow escape.

The cartridges were taken to police headquarters, where they were placed in a secure and safe place.

The authorities will make a thorough investigation of the matter, but it is not likely anything will develop, as the parties who put the dynamite there will in all probability lie low for some time to come.

One of the bombs was later taken to the fire station, where it was cut open and disclosed all the properties which go to make up a perfect dynamite cartridge.

HOMESTEAD FLUNKED

Manager Cancelled Games Scheduled for Here—Winters A. C., of Pittsburg, Coming.

The Homestead base ball team, which was scheduled to play here with the local team on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, has flunked. A telegram received from the manager last evening stated that owing to the absence of some of the players of the team it would be necessary to cancel the games.

This morning's Pittsburg papers state that the Homestead team will play at home the three days it was expected to be here, and hence, it appears that instead of there being a shortage of players, the manager of the team was led to call the games off here because of the fear that their reputation would be jarred. This is what Manager Walsh claims, and it certainly looks that way.

The Winters Athletic team, of Pittsburg, has been secured to take the place of the Homestead team. This nine is one of the Smoky City's strong ones, and will doubtless be an able antagonist for the locals.

STOLE HIS WATCH

Deputy Sheriff Relieved of His Time Piece While Attempting to Make an Arrest.

Salem, Aug. 27.—Deputy Sheriff Howard Noragon, son of the sheriff, experienced a little mixup at the harvest home picnic Saturday in which he lost a valuable gold watch. He and one of the other deputies attended the picnic with the intention of keeping order, and during the day he made public his authority by attempting to take a man off the grounds that was intoxicated. He had hardly laid hands on his man before William Welsh, of this city, and several of his friends stepped up and took a hand. Noragon used his mace freely in his efforts to land his man and during the scuffle his watch was pulled from his pocket and it is gone. Noragon, it is said, had no badge on and for this reason Welsh and the other men were going to see fair play. After the trouble was over Welsh told Noragon that he did not know that he was an officer or there would have been no objection to the arrest.

SEIZED WITH CRAMPS

Salem Man Narrowly Escaped Death By Drowning at Youngstown.

Salem, Aug. 27.—Curtis Webb, a young man employed at the Deming foundry, had a very narrow escape from drowning in the Mahoning river at Idora park, Youngstown, while in swimming yesterday afternoon.

Young Webb was spending the day at that city and in company with some friends went in swimming, suffering an attack of cramps. A companion succeeded in rescuing him just as he was about to sink for the third time.

Hopelessly Deadlocked.

Toronto, Aug. 27.—The school board of this town is deadlocked, apparently hopelessly so, over the election of a primary teacher to succeed Olive Cavitt, who recently resigned. There are seven applicants for the position and 117 ballots were taken, at three special meetings last week, to elect a teacher, but with no result.

Killed By a Gravel Train.

DEADLY BITE

MAN ATTACKED BY A COPPER-HEAD SNAKE.

Sucks the Wound And Will Recover. Has Had His Share of Trouble.

Wheeling, Aug. 27.—Evan Brandon, of Glendale, a well-known character, was bitten by a copperhead snake, one of the deadliest known in these parts, but by his own efforts saved his life and will probably recover shortly without suffering any ill effects of the encounter with his snakebitch.

Brandon claims to be 71 years of age, but looks to be 55 or thereabouts. He was on the Parkinson farm, east of Moundsville, and was looking for snakes. He killed three large copperheads. He was bitten on the leg by the third one, which sank its fangs into the flesh just below the knee. How Brandon managed to connect with the wound is almost inconceivable, but he twisted himself into such shape that he could draw the blood from the bite with his mouth. After sucking the wound well he felt better and last evening appeared to be as spry as ever. He says whisky and tobacco will cure anything that attacks him, from smallpox to flea bite.

Brandon is rather a remarkable individual. He has certainly had his share of this world's ills. He served throughout the civil war and as evidence of his fighting therein, exhibits 16 wounds. Sixteen bullet holes actually exist in his body.

About one year ago Brandon was accidentally shot in the face with a full charge of bird pellets. He got well rapidly and since his remarkable escape thinks he is proof against almost any kind of physical trouble.

FAMILY DISTURBANCE

At a Salem Reunion Develops Into a Somewhat Lively Scrap.

Salem, Aug. 27.—Christ Dushman's relatives from Alliance came to visit him yesterday at his home on Fifth street and one of the men named John Lehman, after getting a little too much fire water, endeavored to run the place and to trash his fellow visitor, Edward Dushman, also of Alliance. He was told several times to keep quiet, but he didn't wish to have any trouble, but he got to insulting that Dushman showed fight and the scrap went on and the Dushman residence had a warm time for a few minutes.

The old gentleman says that some of his household furniture and dishes were broken in the bout and if they came to visit him again and in the shape they were yesterday, he will give them a still warmer reception than they received yesterday.

A WEALTHY STRANGER

Surprises Columbiana People By a $40,000 Check And a $50,000 Express Package.

Columbiana, Aug. 27.—For a week past a man claiming to be a Pennsylvanian of wealth has been creating a sensation here. On various occasions he exhibited what he claimed was a large roll of bills. It was also claimed he sent bonds to the amount of $50,000 by express for collection and that he gave a certain lady a check for $40,000. He engaged boarding at a private house at $2 a day and it is said he proposed marriage to several ladies in town.

After boarding one week he took a train for other parts, stating he would be back next day, but he has not yet made his appearance, and it is not likely he ever will.

A CASE OF IT

Many More Like It in East Liverpool.

The following case is but one of many occurring daily in East Liverpool. It is an easy matter to verify its correctness. Surely you cannot ask for better proof than such conclusive evidence:

Mrs. Edward Orr, of 220 Thompson street, says: "My sister, Mrs. Borland, of Pittsburg, while visiting us, recommended Doan's Kidney Pills so highly that I was induced to try them. I had severe attacks of kidney complaint. Some times I was so bad I could not get up; many times my neighbors came and found me lying on the lounge suffering, when I intended to do a big day's work. I was so miserable I could do nothing. After my sister told me of the pills I made up my mind to try them and got a box at the W. & W. pharmacy. They did just what they claimed they would do—cured me sound and well in a few days. My little girl was feeling poorly and had a sallow complexion, for some time I gave her a few doses and after the treatment she felt splendidly."

WORDS WE SWALLOW

ON THE TIP OF THE TONGUE, YET WE CAN'T GET THEM OUT.

This Hitch In the Working of the Brain Is Called Aphasia In the Medical Profession—A Trick the Chinaman Uses For the Emergency.

Everybody knows what it is to have a word on the tip of the tongue and yet not be able to speak it. The word is known perfectly well, and yet we cannot for the life of us give it utterance. More often than not it is a common word in everyday use. But it will not be spoken when wanted. What is the secret of this "word forgetfulness?"

Doctors call it aphasia. They cannot explain it, but say it is a little hitch in the working of the brain or intellect. The Chinese, who have done so many quaint and clever things, recognized the difficulty thousands of years ago and invented a very ingenious way of making the best of things.

They manufactured a number of words and sentences that meant absolutely nothing, mere sound without sense. When a Chinaman in the course of conversation comes to a word that he has on the tip of his tongue, but cannot speak, he just makes use of the meaningless phrases invented for that purpose until he recalls the word he wants and goes on with the conversation.

The trick, for trick it is, is much in use in public speaking and certainly is an improvement on the "er—er—ers," coughings and throat clearings that so plentifully besprinkle our own after dinner orations. The speaker preserves his dignity and gives himself time for thought.

Very often the greater the desire to speak the missing word the greater the difficulty or sheer impossibility. The man in the Arabian story could not remember the words "Open sesame," although he was in danger of his life. There are many cases on record of soldiers, even officers, forgetting the password and being shot down by their own sentries. At the critical moment the all important word that they thought they knew as well as their own names escapes them. They struggle to recall it, but the very effort makes it more difficult, and they pay with their lives.

A man may sometimes be tortured and yet be unable to speak the word he most desires to utter. Spies have been captured and have gone to their death in silence not because they have not been eager to betray their comrades, but because under the stress and excitement of the situation they have totally forgotten the information they would convey. A celebrated case of this kind was made the subject of a play produced in London some years ago, called "A Question of Memory."

No doubt every reader will be able to recall instances in which he has suffered from this "word forgetfulness." One can often remember the initial letter of the word, but not the word itself. It is still on the tip of the tongue, even after one has given up the struggle to recollect it.

Actors sometimes forget a word or two in their parts that no effort of their own can give back to them at the moment. But the wings reached and the strain removed they are again immediately word perfect and at a loss to explain their forgetfulness. A whole part is sometimes forgotten. This usually happens after a very long run. During the run of "The Second Mrs. Tanqueray" Mrs. Patrick Campbell one night found herself on the stage as innocent of any knowledge of her part as any member of the audience. She made desperate efforts to "find herself," but it was no good. That performance she had to read the part through from beginning to end.

Names of people are the words that slip our memories most frequently. We see a face we know, and yet we cannot fit a name to it. We are shaken by the hand or slapped on the back, and all the while we are hard at work trying

Hopelessly Deadlocked.

Toronto, Aug. 27.—The school board of this town is deadlocked, apparently hopelessly so, over the election of a primary teacher to succeed Olive Cavitt, who recently resigned. There are seven applicants for the position and 117 ballots were taken, at three special meetings last week, to elect a teacher, but with no result.

DEADLY BITE

MAN ATTACKED BY A COPPER-HEAD SNAKE.

Sucks the Wound And Will Recover. Has Had His Share of Trouble.

Wheeling, Aug. 27.—Evan Brandon, of Glendale, a well-known character, was bitten by a copperhead snake, one of the deadliest known in these parts, but by his own efforts saved his life and will probably recover shortly without suffering any ill effects of the encounter with his snakebitch.

Brandon claims to be 71 years of age, but looks to be 55 or thereabouts. He was on the Parkinson farm, east of Mountsville, and was looking for snakes. He killed three large copperheads. He was bitten on the leg by the third one, which sank its fangs into the flesh just below the knee. How Brandon managed to connect with the wound is almost inconceivable, but he twisted himself into such shape that he could draw the blood from the bite with his mouth. After sucking the wound well he felt better and last evening appeared to be as spry as ever. He says whisky and tobacco will cure anything that attacks him, from smallpox to flea bite.

Brandon is rather a remarkable individual. He has certainly had his share of this world's ills. He served throughout the civil war and as evidence of his fighting therein, exhibits 16 wounds. Sixteen bullet holes actually exist in his body.

About one year ago Brandon was accidentally shot in the face with a full charge of bird pellets. He got well rapidly and since his remarkable escape thinks he is proof against almost any kind of physical trouble.

FAMILY DISTURBANCE

At a Salem Reunion Develops Into a Somewhat Lively Scrap.

Salem, Aug. 27.—Christ Dustman's relatives from Alliance came to visit him yesterday at his home on Fifth street and one of the men named John Lehman, after getting a little too much fire water, endeavored to run the place and to thrash his fellow visitor, Edward Dustman, also of Alliance. He was told several times to keep quiet, that he didn't wish to have any trouble, but he got to insulting that Dustman showed fight and the scrap went on and the Dustman residence had a warm time for a few minutes.

The old gentleman says that some of his household furniture and dishes were broken in the bout and if they came to visit him again and in the shape they were yesterday, he will give them a still warmer reception than they received yesterday.

A WEALTHY STRANGER

Surprises Columbiana People By a $40,000 Check And a $50,000 Express Package.

Columbiana, Aug. 27.—For a week past a man claiming to be a Pennsylvanian of wealth has been creating a sensation here. On various occasions he exhibited what he claimed was a large roll of bills. It was also claimed he sent bonds to the amount of $50,000 by express for collection and that he gave a certain lady a check for $40,000. He engaged boarding at a private house at $2 a day and it is said he proposed marriage to several ladies in town.

After boarding one week he took a train for other parts, stating he would be back next day, but he has not yet made his appearance, and it is not likely he ever will.

A CASE OF IT

Many More Like It in East Liverpool.

The following case is but one of many occurring daily in East Liverpool. It is an easy matter to verify its correctness. Surely you cannot ask for better proof than such conclusive evidence:

Mrs. Edward Orr, of 220 Thompson street, says: "My sister, Mrs. Borland, of Pittsburg, while visiting us, recommended Doan's Kidney Pills so highly that I was induced to try them. I had severe attacks of kidney complaint. Some times I was so bad I could not get up; many times my neighbors came and found me lying on the lounge suffering, when I intended to do a big day's work. I was so miserable I could do nothing. After my sister told me of the pills I made up my mind to try them and got a box at the W. & W. pharmacy. They did just what they claimed they would do—cured me sound and well in a few days. My little girl was feeling poorly and had a sorrowful complexion, for some time I gave her a few doses and after the treatment she felt splendidly."

WORDS WE SWALLOW

ON THE TIP OF THE TONGUE, YET WE CAN'T GET THEM OUT.

This Hitch in the Working of the Brain is Called Aphasia in the Medical Profession—A Trick the Chinaman Uses For the Emergency.

Everybody knows what it is to have a word on the tip of the tongue and yet not be able to speak it. The word is known perfectly well, and yet we cannot for the life of us give it utterance. More often than not it is a common word in everyday use. But it will not be spoken when wanted. What is the secret of this "word forgetfulness?"

Doctors call it aphasia. They cannot explain it, but say it is a little hitch in the working of the brain or intellect. The Chinese, who have done so many quaint and clever things, recognized the difficulty thousands of years ago and invented a very ingenious way of making the best of things. They manufactured a number of words and sentences that meant absolutely nothing, mere sound without sense. When a Chinaman in the course of conversation comes to a word that he has on the tip of his tongue, but cannot speak, he just makes use of the meaningless phrases invented for that purpose until he recalls the word he wants and goes on with the conversation.

The trick, for trick it is, is much in use in public speaking and certainly is an improvement on the "er—er—ers," coughings and throat clearings that so plentifully besprinkle our own after dinner orations. The speaker preserves his dignity and gives himself time for thought.

Very often the greater the desire to speak the missing word the greater the difficulty or sheer impossibility. The man in the Arabian story could not remember the words "Open sesame," although he was in danger of his life. There are many cases on record of soldiers, even officers, forgetting the password and being shot down by their own sentries. At the critical moment the all important word that they thought they knew as well as their own names escapes them. They struggle to recall it, but the very effort makes it more difficult, and they pay with their lives.

A man may sometimes be tortured and yet be unable to speak the word he most desires to utter. Spies have been captured and have gone to their death in silence not because they have not been eager to betray their comrades, but because under the stress and excitement of the situation they have totally forgotten the information they would convey. A celebrated case of this kind was made the subject of a play produced in London some years ago, called "A Question of Memory."

No doubt every reader will be able to recall instances in which he has suffered from this "word forgetfulness." One can often remember the initial letter of the word, but not the word itself. It is still on the tip of the tongue, even after one has given up the struggle to recollect it.

Actors sometimes forget a word or two in their parts that no effort of their own can give back to them at the moment. But the wings reached and the strain removed they are again immediately word perfect and at a loss to explain their forgetfulness. A whole part is sometimes forgotten. This usually happens after a very long run. During the run of "The Second Mrs. Tanqueray" Mrs. Patrick Campbell one night found herself on the stage as innocent of any knowledge of her part as any member of the audience. She made desperate efforts to "find herself," but it was no good. That performance she had to read the part through from beginning to end.

Names of people are the words that slip our memories most frequently. We see a face we know, and yet we cannot fit a name to it. We are shaken by the hand or slapped on the back, and all the while we are hard at work trying

ESCAPED FROM JAIL.

Three Prisoners Overpowered a Deputy Sheriff at Steubenville, O.

BEAT HIM UNTIL INSENSIBLE.

Took His Keys and $28 in Money—Invited Other Inmates of the Prison to Escape, but They All Refused.

Steubenville, O., Aug. 27.—Three prisoners in the county jail here effected their escape last night by desperate means.

When Deputy Sheriff McMasters went in to lock up the prisoners for the night three of them jumped upon him and pinioned his arms so that he could not shoot and then threw him to the floor and gagged him.

After tying a sheet around his head and mouth, they beat him into insensibility. Next they took his keys and $28 in money from his pockets and invited the other prisoners to escape. They refused to do so and the three fled.

THE POPE WAS THREATENED.

Anarchist Arrested in the Vatican Gardens Who Said He Intended to Kill His Holiness.

New York, Aug. 27.—A dispatch from Rome says that an anarchist has been captured in the vatican gardens. He carried a revolver and a dirk and admitted that he intended to assassinate the pope.

The man lay hidden in a part of the gardens which the pope traverses daily. The pope was being carried from his private apartments in a chair to where his landau waited to convey him to the pavilion of Leo IV., when a Swiss guardsman heard a noise in the shrubbery some distance away. The soldier investigated and placed the man under arrest.

The man said he had been hidden all morning in the gardens and expected to have no trouble in killing the pope. The pope has not been informed of the incident. The Italian police authorities have taken charge of the prisoner.

BANK CLOSED ITS DOORS.

Had Money Deposited in a Closed Bank, at Cleveland.

Marietta, O., Aug. 27.—The bank of New Matamoras, Washington county, a private institution, closed its doors. It is said the bank had deposited $50,000 with the Superior Street Savings and Banking company, Cleveland, which closed last Friday.

Cleveland, Aug. 27.—Some time ago the directors of the recently failed Superior Street Savings and Banking company induced the directors of the New Matamoras bank to make the former its Cleveland depository. Accordingly $50,000 was brought to this city and deposited. Rumors concerning the stability of the Cleveland institution caused the New Matamoras bank to ask for the return of the money. Inability to produce it, it is said, caused the Cleveland bank's suspension. Receiver Sayle, of the Cleveland bank, confirmed the above statement.

State Senator W. T. Clark stated that if he shall be re-elected this fall he will introduce a resolution to provide for a rigid examination of state banks as obtains with federal banks.

Elaborate Revival of Francesco De Rimini.

Chicago, Aug. 27.—An elaborate revival of "Francesco da Rimini" was presented at the Grand Opera house last night by Otis Skinner, who, with his able support, was enthusiastically received. The impressive tragedy was wholly and artistically set, the scenic surroundings and the costumes were specially effective and the production was a pronounced success.

Mr. Skinner shared his triumph with Aubrey Boucicault, Marcia Van Dresser, William Morris and Gertrude Norman.

Raided a Pool Room.

Cincinnati, Aug. 27.—Sheriff Miller again raided the pool room at Newport, Ky. The officer seized all the tickets, record sheets and all the fittings of the pool room. With an av the blackboards were torn down and with the other plunder loaded into a patrol wagon. The paraphernalia will be held for evidence. The proprietors of the pool room declare that Tuesday will find them at the same place, again equipped and ready for business.

It Takes a Remedy of Uncommon Merit to Draw the Unqualified Praise of a Successful Practicing Physician.

Dr. J. W. Bates of Corfu, N. Y., states: "A most remarkable case has come under my hands of late and has fully convinced me of the wonderful power of Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills over diseases of the nerves."

"A young lady who was treated for over two years for epilepsy by two doctors was given up to die. I found that her sickness was not epilepsy, but nervous troubles, due to menstrual derangements, and prescribed four of Dr. Chase's Nerve Pills a day, after meals and at bed-time. Since that time she has not had a single bad spell. Her health has rapidly improved, she has gained about fifteen pounds in weight, and I do not hesitate to state that Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills have saved her life and restored her to health."

THE RESULT NOT CONCLUSIVE.

Stock Market Had More Thorough Test Monday Than Since Rise Set In.

New York, Aug. 27.—The stock market had a more thorough test Monday than any time since the rise in prices set in. The result was not altogether conclusive. The outside demand for stocks was augmented, as was expected. A sustained advance for two weeks and an evident growth of interest and increasing tendency to buy stocks may always be depended on to produce this result. Equally a matter of course is the tendency of the professional traders who have been accumulating stocks and carefully nursing the market during the rise, to unload their holdings on the outside buying, so as to make sure of a portion of their profits. This process was very obviously going on during the first hour of the market Monday, which was the most active of the day. Some recession in prices resulted, but the market on the whole took the realizing very well and no serious inroads were made upon prices. Afterwards there were new advances here and there and the market gave the appearance generally of being still in the control of bulls. The buying demand, however, became languid and then almost torpid, and the market proved easily vulnerable to attack by the professional bears. In the last hour prices were quite generally below Saturday's level. A substantial rally followed, but this again proved somewhat short lived, and the closing was irregular and quite active, with speculative sentiment manifestly much unsettled. There were various favorable factors which aided the bulls in opening prices higher. The failure of the steel workers in South Chicago to strike and the reports of an intended conciliatory attempt by the strikers themselves at a settlement affected not only the steel stocks, but the whole market. The rise of United States Steel in final dealings to 1½ over Saturday was effective in checking the raid of the bears. London led off with good buying of Americans after its Saturday holiday. Rumors were rife of coming definite announcement of plans growing out of the Northern Pacific settlement. The approaching September advance in the price of anthracite helped the coalers, and the Erie was also affected by the reported acquisition of the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton. The reaction was due to the apprehension that money was destined to work closer from this time on. It was also feared that the large interests who have been fostering the rise had taken the opportunity to realize and would retire from the market until autumn demands for money are satisfied. London has grown optimistic and expects easy money through the fall, but the expectation is based on the hope that New York will not draw gold and takes no account of the rumored Russian loan at Paris. An interview was published Monday morning with Secretary Gage, in which he professed to see no reason for departure from the present policy of his department of purchasing bonds, somewhat dashed the hopes of an element in Wall street which was expecting relief from that quarter. Chicago drew no currency Monday from New York, and the New York discount rate there recovered to 40 cents discount, compared with 50 last week.

Monday's services began with an early devotional exercise, led by Rev. R. A. Walton, of Owingsville, Ky., followed by an evangelistic conference, at which Rev. L. W. Munhall, of New York, presided. A forenoon lecture was delivered by Rev. James M. Buckley, editor of The Methodist Christian Advocate, of New York, following which came several addresses by leading evangelists, who gave personal experiences of their work. Dr. Munhall, of New York, presided, and Rev. James B. Ely, of Philadelphia, representing the Presbyterian Evangelistic committee, spoke of the wonderful success of the tent meetings inaugurated there three years ago by Rev. Dwight L. Moody. He also gave some of the results of these meetings. Mrs. Amanda Smith, a noted colored evangelist, also addressed the meeting.

John Willis Baer, of Boston, secretary of the World's United Christian Endeavor Societies, presided at a conference for young people in the afternoon, after which an address was delivered by Rev. Alexander Patterson, of Chicago. At another meeting of evangelists, held in the afternoon, Evangelist M. W. B. Williams spoke. The hillside service at sunset was led by Rev. H. M. Wharton, D. D. The evening sermon was delivered by Rev. John McNeill, of Scotland. Graduates of Lane seminary attending the conference held a reunion and a permanent organization was effected.

JUSTIFIED IN WITHHOLDING VOUCHERS TO ARMOR CO.

Washington, Aug. 27.—The department of justice, in an opinion by Acting Attorney General Beck, has advised the secretary of the navy that he is justified in withholding his approval of certain vouchers which have been submitted by the Bethlehem Steel company and the Carnegie Steel company for royalties which these companies paid to the Harvey Steel company for the use of the Harvey process in hardening steel, and for which they claim reimbursement from the government under a contract, by which the government agreed to repay these royalties to the steel companies. If the steel companies were "required to pay" them to the Harvey Steel company.

Wonderful Success of Tent Meetings at Philadelphia, Inaugurated by Late D. L. Moody, Described. Negress Addressed Conference.

Warsaw, Ind., Aug. 27.—A noticeable feature of all the sermons and discourses delivered during the Winona Bible conference is the absence of creed discussions. Many noted Bible teachers of the United States, Canada and Scotland have participated and in all addresses delivered any discussion of creed has been avoided, although 12 Protestant denominations have been represented.

A Lucky Imitation.

Marshal Gourko, the famous Russian general, was a terrible autocrat. On one occasion an impersonator of celebrated men was performing at a theater in Odessa. One evening he received a mysterious message, which read: "Study General Gourko." In Russia it is better not to inquire into matters that one does not understand, and so the artist spent an hour in privately impersonating the autocratic Russian.

Just as the evening performance was about to commence an order of arrest signed by Gourko was presented to the impersonator, and without explanation he was led through the streets to the marshal's palace and into an apartment where the terrible man was seated. "They tell me that you impersonate celebrated men," he roared. "Impersonate me!"

Giving a hasty look at Gourko, the performer turned to the mirror to "make up." It was an anxious time, for if the marshal should take exception to the representation he had unlimited power to inflict punishment. The impersonator dragged himself together and turned to the marshal a copy of his own face and overbearing manner. Gourko burst into a roar of laughter, and the dangerous moment was over.

Back From the Philippines.

About all the volunteers are back from the Philippines, where they have had a long, hard experience of soldier life. Nearly all report the health of the soldiers good, except for frequent attacks of dysentery and diarrhoea. The 51st Iowa regiment on leaving San Francisco took a case of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy with them, and many soldiers carried single bottles. This was soon used up and found so effective that a constant demand for it resulted in a large shipment being made from the factory at Des Moines. A teaspoonful of it in a little water always has the desired effect. Sold by Alvin H. Bulger, Druggist.

THE NEXT BIG EXPOSITION.

The centennial of the Louisiana purchase is to be commemorated at St. Louis next year on a scale of magnificence. It is announced that the entire cost of the exhibition will be about $30,000,000. The site of the fair buildings will be 640 acres in Forest Park and 460 acres outside. Contracts for buildings to cost about $8,000,000 are to be let the coming fall. It is perhaps unfortunate for the enterprising St. Louis people that their big show is to follow so swiftly after the Buffalo exposition. The world's fair business is in danger of being overdone. Still, the St. Louis exposition, from its nature and the event which it commemorates, will undoubtedly be liberally patronized by western people. Such enterprises, whether profitable to their promoters or not, are certainly of great educational value. They open the eyes of visitors, as nothing else could, to the resources of the country and to its advancement and achievements in arts, industry, commerce and education. Exhibitors also profit peculiarly by the extensive advertising given their products and business is stimulated in ways innumerable. The St. Louis show will be a success from every standpoint if pluck, enterprise and liberal expenditure of money can make it so.

DANGEROUS IDIOTS.

The fool who rocks the boat is in a fair way to suffer for his folly. A Maryland grand jury has indicted one of his tribe for murder and the prospects are good that he will either be hanged or sentenced to a long term in the penitentiary. With him should go the other idiot who playfully snaps a revolver at his friend and discovers too late that the weapon was loaded and that his friend is dead. The smart Alecks who have a fondness for this sort of practical joking are dangerous persons and should not be suffered to run at large. They imperil valuable lives, as well as their own valueless existence. Maryland justice will serve a good end if it succeeds in getting some of them out of the way.

GROWTH OF RAILROADS.

The growth of steam railroads in the United States continues at a surprising rate. In proportion to population this country has more miles of railroad than any other in the world, and is in a fair way to maintain that lead. In 1890 the total railroad mileage was 163,597. In 1900 it was 193,345, an increase of 29,748 miles. Over a million men are enumerated as railroad employees and over five and a half billion dollars are the capital invested in railroads.

Many men prominent in public life have announced themselves as favorable to a change of date of our presidential inauguration. It is possible that such change may be made by the next congress. Inaugurating a president is a spectacle that calls to vigorous warmth the patriotic blood of every American citizen, and there is a growing conviction that it should be performed at a season when multitudes may enjoy it without imperiling their health. The Chicago Post has re-awakened interest in this subject by obtaining expressions from Senators Hanna, Allison, Elkins, Secretary Gage and others.

We have somewhere read a rumor that Senator M. S. Quay, of Pennsylvania, was out of politics. Yet the breeze stirred up by the simple fact of his home-coming shows that it would be hard for him to get out if he wanted to. And there are no surface indications that the ruling passion is not just as strong with him as ever.

The sultan is dancing to the music of the Frenchman's fiddle, not because he likes to, but because he must.

"UNDER TWO FLAGS"

Witnessed By a Large Audience And Thoroughly Enjoyed—Company Will Return.

The initial performance of the season at the Grand Opera House, "Under Two Flags," was witnessed last night by a large audience and the play was thoroughly enjoyed from the beginning to the end. It was marked by originality, and the cast, which was unusually large, composed of able talent.

A large amount of special scenery is carried by the company, much of which is very costly and beautiful. The sand storm scene in the fourth act is strikingly realistic and many other thrilling situations are worked into the play which tend to keep the spectators in a tremor of excitement. Frank G. Campbell, who dramatized the play, which is taken from Ouida's novel, interpreted a difficult part and made a pronounced hit. William Richards took the leading role and his acting was a foremost feature of the performance. Miss Lillian Crawford and Miss Eliza Mason had difficult parts, but carried them out in a pleasing manner. Miss Lillian Thomas also showed great training, and in fact there was not a member of the entire cast in any way lacking in talent.

At the close of the performance Mr. Campbell announced that the company would make regular visits to East Liverpool, returning every three weeks in a change of program. The management of the opera house has been fortunate in securing this excellent company for East Liverpool theater-goers.

"What Shall We Eat?"

Every day the same old question, What shall we eat for breakfast, for luncheon, for dinner? assaults with monotonous regularity the patient housewife who seeks to provide good living for the family in agreeable variety at a moderate cost. There is a daily department in the Chicago Record-Herald, which is intended to answer this question satisfactorily every day in the year. It is entitled "Meals for a Day," and provides menus for the three meals every day, with the necessary recipes. These menus and recipes are carefully selected by the Record-Herald's household editor, and cash prizes are awarded to the best that are received. Housewives everywhere are invited to participate in the competition. For full particulars, see the "Meals for a Day" department in the Chicago Record-Herald.

Of a day in and about the local

Potteries.

Harry Williams, a potter of 76 Hart avenue T renton, who was sentenced to six months' imprisonment in Mercer court several months ago for bigamy, was arrested Sunday upon a warrant in which he is charged with deserting his five-year-old son Johnny, who would have been left to wander about the streets if a kind-hearted neighbor had not taken pity on the lad and furnished him with a temporary home. It is alleged Williams has three wives.

Harry Mays has resigned his position as conductor on the Southside street car line and has accepted one in the warehouse of Taylor, Lee & Smith's.

SHEEP-KILLING DOGS

Do Destructive Work in a Fine Flock Near Winona.

On Friday and Saturday nights of last week a fine flock of sheep owned by F. H. Scattergood, of Winona, was attacked by dogs and 47 of them were killed outright and many wounded. The flock consisted of 172, and those alive, 125 in number, are in bad condition on account of the chase and scare. Many of these sheep were mangled in a horrible manner. The flock was scattered. The living ones were found in 11 different flocks, scattered over all parts of the farm and some of them on a neighboring farm. Every field on the farm had dead sheep in it.

Many of the wounded sheep had their ears torn off close to the head. No clue has been found as to the guilty dogs and the damage will be paid out of the sheep fund.

THREE VICTIMS OF YELLOW FEVER EXPERIMENTING.

Havana, Aug. 27.—Of the eight persons bitten by infected mosquitoes in connection with the experiments conducted by the yellow fever board during the last three weeks three have died. Three others who took the fever are expected to recover. One has not developed the disease. The eighth person as yet has not developed fever, although it is too early to say what will happen in that case.

Ordered Negroes to Leave.

Sapulpa, I. T., Aug. 27.—Notices warning idle negroes to leave town have resulted in nearly all blacks not employed or owning property taking their departure. Surrounding towns also are taking up the fight against the negroes.

Forsyth Asked to Explain.

Washington, Aug. 27.—Acting Secretary Hackett took action on the case of Captain James K. Forsyth, second in command at the Mare Island navy yard, who discussed the Schley-Sampson affair at Kansas City. The captain has been called upon to explain why he disobeyed the order of Secretary Long to refrain from discussion of the Schley-Sampson controversy.

Grazed In the Fog.

It is not usual for a ship on the high seas to elect to cast anchor on the deck of a passing steamer, but that is what a four masted schooner did once in the Atlantic. The two vessels grazed in the fog, and the "catted" port anchor of the schooner caught in the steamer's deck "by a fluke." It fastened to an engineer's stateroom in such a manner as to bar his exit; but, fortunately, the chain parted just as the room was being ripped into fragments. The schooner followed the steamer to its destination to recover her anchor.

Cleaning the Clock.

A farmer has an ambitious son, 12 years old, who, being left alone for a few hours the other day, tried to clean the clock. He easily got the clock to pieces, but his difficulty lay in putting them together again after cleaning.

At this task he was only partly successful, and upon his father's return home he eagerly exclaimed:

"Father, I've cleaned the clock and got enough works left over to make another one!"—Exchange.

Had Troubles of His Own.

"Sir," began young Timkins as he entered the presence of the dear girl's father, "I want to marry your daughter."

"Oh, don't bother me with your troubles!" interrupted the old gentleman. "She told me some time ago that she intended to marry you, so you'll have to settle it between yourselves."—Exchange.

Deserted.

Jamestown, Va., where the English gained their first foothold in the new world in 1607, was burned in 1676. Today nobody lives there. Little remains to mark the site except a crumbling church tower, dilapidated gravestones and remnants of the foundations of a few houses.—Ladies' Home Journal.

AMERICAN DESERTER CAUGHT.

Civilian Scout and Macabebes Slipped Into Rebel Camp.

Manila, Aug. 27.—Pitcher's first dispatch from Mindoro tells how Lieutenant Hazzard of the Third cavalry, commanding a troop of Macabebes scouts, captured the American deserter, Howard, who, as a leader of the Filipinos, had been annoying the Americans for many months. Ferguson, one of Lieutenant Hazzard's civilian scouts, disguised as an insurgent, with eight Macabebes, penetrated into the camp of Colonel Atienza, commanding 240 riflemen and 200 Bolomen, at night, located Howard, bound and gagged him and led him away without disturbing the camp.

nificence. It is announced that the entire cost of the exhibition will be about $30,000,000. The site of the fair buildings will be 640 acres in Forest Park and 460 acres outside. Contracts for buildings to cost about $8,000,000 are to be let the coming fall. It is perhaps unfortunate for the enterprising St. Louis people that their big show is to follow so swiftly after the Buffalo exposition. The world's fair business is in danger of being overdone. Still, the St. Louis exposition, from its nature and the event which it commemorates, will undoubtedly be liberally patronized by western people.
Such enterprises, whether profitable to their promoters or not, are certainly of great educational value. They open the eyes of visitors, as nothing else could, to the resources of the country and to its advancement and achievements in arts, industry, commerce and education. Exhibitors also profit pecuniarily by the extensive advertising given their products and business is stimulated in ways innumerable.
The St. Louis show will be a success from every standpoint if pluck, enterprise and liberal expenditure of money can make it so.

DANGEROUS IDIOTS.

The fool who rocks the boat is in a fair way to suffer for his folly. A Maryland grand jury has indicted one of his tribe for murder and the prospects are good that he will either be hanged or sentenced to a long term in the penitentiary. With him should go the other idiot who playfully snaps a revolver at his friend and discovers too late that the weapon was loaded and that his friend is dead. The smart Alecks who have a fondness for this sort of practical joking are dangerous persons and should not be suffered to run at large. They imperil valuable lives, as well as their own valueless existence. Maryland justice will serve a good end if it succeeds in getting some of them out of the way.

GROWTH OF RAILROADS.

The growth of steam railroads in the United States continues at a surprising rate. In proportion to population this country has more miles of railroad than any other in the world, and is in a fair way to maintain that lead. In 1890 the total railroad mileage was 163,597. In 1900 it was 193,- 345, an increase of 29,748 miles. Over a million men are enumerated as railroad employees and over five and a half billion dollars are the capital invested in railroads.

Many men prominent in public life have announced themselves as favorable to a change of date of our presidential inauguration. It is possible that such change may be made by the next congress. Inaugurating a president is a spectacle that calls to vigorous warmth the patriotic blood of every American citizen, and there is a growing conviction that it should be performed at a season when multitudes may enjoy it without imperiling their health. The Chicago Post has re-awakened interest in this subject by obtaining expressions from Senators Hanna, Allison, Elkins, Secretary
Gage and others.

We have somewhere read a rumor that Senator M. S. Quay, of Pennsylvania, was out of politics. Yet the breeze stirred up by the simple fact of his home-coming shows that it would be hard for him to get out if he wanted to. And there are no surface indications that the ruling passion is not just as strong with him as ever.

The sultan is dancing to the music of the Frenchman's fiddle, not because he likes it, but because he must.

"UNDER TWO FLAGS"

Witnessed By a Large Audience And Thoroughly Enjoyed—Company Will Return.

The initial performance of the season at the Grand Opera House, "Under Two Flags," was witnessed last night by a large audience and the play was thoroughly enjoyed from the beginning to the end. It was marked by originality, and the cast, which was unusually large, composed of able talent.

A large amount of special scenery is carried by the company, much of which is very costly and beautiful.
The sand storm scene in the fourth act is strikingly realistic and many other thrilling situations are worked into the play which tend to keep the spectators in a tremor of excitement.
Frank G. Campbell, who dramatized the play, which is taken from Ouida's novel, interpreted a difficult part and made a pronounced hit. William Richards took the leading role and his acting was a foremost feature of the performance. Miss Lillian Crawford and Miss Eliza Mason had difficult parts, but carried them out in a pleasing manner. Miss Lillian Thomas also showed great training, and in fact there was not a member of the entire cast in any way lacking in talent.

At the close of the performance
Mr. Campbell announced that the company would make regular visits to East Liverpool, returning every three weeks in a change of program. The management of the opera house has been fortunate in securing this excellent company for East Liverpool theatergoers.

"What Shall We Eat?"

Every day the same old question,
What shall we eat for breakfast, for luncheon, for dinner? assaults with monotonous regularity the patient housewife who seeks to provide good living for the family in agreeable variety at a moderate cost. There is a daily department in the Chicago Record-Herald, which is intended to answer this question satisfactorily every day in the year. It is entitled "Meals for a Day," and provides menus for the three meals every day, with the necessary recipes. These menus and recipes are carefully selected by the Record-Herald's household editor, and cash prizes are awarded to the best that are received. Housewives everywhere are invited to participate in the competition. For full particulars, see the "Meals for a Day" department in the Chicago Record-Herald.

Potteries.

Harry Williams, a potter of 76 Hart avenue T renton, who was sentenced to six months' imprisonment in Mercer court several months ago for bigamy, was arrested Sunday upon a warrant in which he is charged with deserting his five-year-old son Johnny, who would have been left to wander about the streets if a kind-hearted neighbor had not taken pity on the lad and furnished him with a temporary home.
It is alleged Williams has three wives.

Harry Mays has resigned his position as conductor on the Southside street car line and has accepted one

SHEEP-KILLING DOGS

Do Destructive Work in a Fine Flock Near Winona.

On Friday and Saturday nights of last week a fine flock of sheep owned by F. H. Scattergood, of Winona, was attacked by dogs and 47 of them were killed outright and many wounded.
The flock consisted of 172, and those alive, 125 in number, are in bad condition on account of the chase and scare. Many of these sheep were mangled in a horrible manner. The flock was scattered. The living ones were found in 11 different flocks, scattered over all parts of the farm and some of them on a neighboring farm. Every field on the farm had dead sheep in it.

Many of the wounded sheep had their ears torn off close to the head.
No clue has been found as to the guilty dogs and the damage will be paid out of the sheep fund.

THREE VICTIMS OF YELLOW FEVER EXPERIMENTING.

Havana, Aug. 27.—Of the eight persons bitten by infected mosquitoes in connection with the experiments conducted by the yellow fever board during the last three weeks three have died. Three others who took the fever are expected to recover. One has not developed the disease. The eighth person as yet has not developed fever, although it is too early to say what will happen in that case.

Ordered Negroes to Leave.

Sapulpa, I. T., Aug. 27.—Notices warning idle negroes to leave town have resulted in nearly all blacks not employed or owning property taking their departure. Surrounding towns also are taking up the fight against the negroes.

Forsyth Asked to Explain.

Washington, Aug. 27.—Acting Secretary Hackett took action on the case of Captain James K. Forsyth, second in command at the Mare Island navy yard, who discussed the Schley-Sampson affair at Kansas City.
The captain has been called upon to explain why he disobeyed the order of Secretary Long to refrain from discussion of the Schley-Sampson controversy.

Grazed in the Fog.

It is not usual for a ship on the high seas to elect to cast anchor on the deck of a passing steamer, but that is what a four masted schooner did once in the Atlantic. The two vessels grazed in the fog, and the "catted" port anchor of the schooner caught in the steamer's deck "by a fluke." It fastened to an engineer's stateroom in such a manner as to bar his exit; but, fortunately, the chain parted just as the room was being ripped into fragments. The schooner followed the steamer to its destination to recover her anchor.

Cleaning the Clock.

A farmer has an ambitious son, 12 years old, who, being left alone for a few hours the other day, tried to clean the clock. He easily got the clock to pieces, but his difficulty lay in putting them together again after cleaning.
At this task he was only partly successful, and upon his father's return home he eagerly exclaimed:
"Father, I've cleaned the clock and got enough works left over to make another one!"—Exchange.

Had Troubles of His Own.

"Sir," began young Timkins as he entered the presence of the dear girl's father, "I want to marry your daughter."
"Oh, don't bother me with your troubles," interrupted the old gentleman.
"She told me some time ago that she intended to marry you, so you'll have to settle it between yourselves."—Exchange.

Deserted.

Jamestown, Va., where the English gained their first foothold in the new world in 1607, was burned in 1676. Today nobody lives there. Little remains to mark the site except a crumbling church tower, dilapidated gravestones and remnants of the foundations of a few houses.—Ladies' Home Journal.

Into Rebel Camp.

Manila, Aug. 27.—Pitcher's first dispatch from Mindoro tells how Lieutenant Hazzard of the Third cavalry, commanding a troop of Macabebes scouts, captured the American deserter, Howard, who, as a leader of the Filipinos, had been annoying the Americans for many months. Ferguson, one of Lieutenant Hazzard's civilian scouts, disguised as an insurgent, with eight Macabebes, penetrated into the camp of Colonel Atienza, commanding 240 riflemen and 200
Bolomen, at night, located Howard, bound and gagged him and led him away without disturbing the camp.

SOUTH SIDE

THE WATER QUESTION

One of Great Interest to Be Settled By Chester Council.

At the next meeting of the Chester council, which is scheduled to be held next Thursday evening, a warm session is expected. One of the weighty matters to be considered by the council is the third reading of the ordinance granting a 25-year franchise to the Southside Water company. This measure was to have come up at the meeting to have been held last Thursday evening, but as three members were absent, there was no meeting.

There seems to be some objection on the part of some of the members about the granting of the franchise, owing to the water plug clause in the ordinance. Some members claim that while the company has offered to place 30 water plugs about the town, the town is too young to have the plugs properly located. Even if the 30 plugs are located now they say it will only be a question of a few years until it will be necessary to have more water protection. They argue that the offer of the water company should be accepted.

THE DAWSON FAMILY

To Hold Its Annual Reunion Tomorrow—Big Crowd Expected.

The annual reunion of the Dawson family, which has been held here for several years, comes off tomorrow at Rock Springs. As usual the attendance will be big, as it has been in the past, visitors coming from all surrounding towns, including Steubenville, Beaver, Beaver Falls, Salem, Smith's Ferry, Georgetown, Pittsburg, Allegheny and other cities.

During the day a meeting of the various committees of the organization is to be held in the pavilion. It is likely that the next reunion will be held at the same place.

$250 for School Seats.

The Chester board of education at a recent meeting let the contract for the new seats to be placed in the new building now in course of erection at the corner of Third street and Carolina avenue. The contract calls for an expenditure of about $250. The seats will not be delivered until the last of September, and they are of the same design as the board secured for the new building at Sixth street last winter.

Judgment for Plaintiff.

The case of Samuel Cameron vs. John Rinehart, of East Liverpool, for $35, claimed due for hay, was heard to a jury at New Cumberland yesterday and the plaintiff was given a judgment for $25.12.

CHESTER NOTES.

Two more cars of material were received at the mill this morning.

John R. Donehoo, of New Cumberland, was a Chester visitor today.

The Methodist Episcopal church, of Mingo, have completed arrangements for their picnic, which will be at the park Friday.

The reproduction of the Passion Play pictures, which were shown at Rock Springs park last Sunday evening, has been secured for a park attraction for all of next week. This is one of the costliest attractions that has appeared at the park this season.

NEW LIFE INFUSED

Into the People of the West Virginia Panhandle By Trolley Road Building.

Wheeling, Aug. 27.—The district between Wheeling and Wellsburg along the river front is feeling the thrill of new life these days. The up-to-date railroad contractor with his horses and mules and gangs of laborers, and the engineer with his tripod and theodolite have invaded the field and are making the earth fly from the future roadbed of the Panhandle Traction company. Such a state of expectancy was never before known up around Short Creek. When agents of the new road asked the farmers about rights of way most of them said:

"That's my land. Go take what you want."

The farmers and landowners were shrewd enough to know that there will be a heavy demand for building property, to relieve the congestion in the city, as soon as the road is finished, so they worked hard for its construction.

This morning saw work on the roadbed renewed with more men added to the several forces already employed. In building this road the general contractors, Stringer & Hallock, have adopted methods more to be found on the big steam railroad jobs than trolley work. They have built camps and at different places along the route the laborers are housed and fed, thus preventing them from scattering over the country to their different homes.

COMING TO THE FRONT

Columbiana County Up-to-Date in Many Ways.

The statement has gone out that Columbiana county shows up as the best in the world for telephones, there being according to population one phone for every 25 people, with prospect that the ratio will be decreased. There are but few villages and hamlets of our neighboring county that are not in touch with the larger cities by wire, while in many communities almost every farm home contains a telephone. The sturdy sons of the plow and reaper know their value, too, as they note current prices, and find a market for their produce by wire.

To illustrate: Winona, in this county, is but a small inland village, yet, notwithstanding, it is the headquarters of a telephone incorporation, and a link in the independent system, and operating a switch with more than 100 names on its roster, the majority of them being farmers of the surrounding neighborhood. In fact, the village or farmer of Columbiana county without telephone or free rural mail will soon be counted a back number—See-Bringing News.

Making the Blind See.

Success in desperate cases by conservative treatment is the lesson often repeated and yet never quite sufficiently learned by any physician or surgeon. The infinite ingenuity behind the healing processes, the never renounced struggle toward normality, is an ever renewed source of wonder. All that is needed to elicit it is confidence in it, delay in doing anything radical, watchfulness to follow up the hints to action as they begin to show themselves.

We know of a living and happy patient who ten years ago had albuminuria retinitis from long existing Bright's disease despite what all the textbooks say as to "two years" in such cases. "Don't do the irrevocable thing until forced to do it" is the warning that has saved many organs and lives. Above all, never proceed with surgery ("the despair of medicine") until physiological and medical methods have been exhausted.

The Wiener Klinischer Wochenschrift tells of the success of Herr Heller, director of an asylum for the blind, in educating the remnant of visual power retained by a "blind" child. There was only perception of light in a narrowed field left, but this by education was made to yield such indications to the eager mind that after 14 months of endeavor the boy has very useful vision, can distinguish colors and forms and even can read.

There are possibly thousands of blind people who have renounced vision instead of cultivating it to a degree that would render the blind types useless.—American Medicine.

Apple Pie Order.

To feel in apple pie order is a phrase which dates back to Puritan times to a certain Hepzibah Merton. It seems that every Saturday she was accustomed to bake two or three dozen apple pies, which were to last her family through the coming week. These she placed carefully on her pantry shelves, labeled for each day of the week, so that Tuesday's pies might not be confused with Thursday's nor those presumably large or intended for washing and sweeping days eaten when household labors were lighter. Aunt Hepzibah's "apple pie order" was known throughout the entire settlement and originated the well known saying.

London Bridges.

Here is the history of London's bridges in brief: Westminster bridge was begun in 1738 and finished in 1746. Blackfriars bridge in 1760 and finished in 1770. Waterloo bridge in 1811 and opened on June 18, 1817. Southwark Iron bridge in 1814 and finished in 1819 and the present London bridge in 1824, being opened on Aug. 1, 1831.

WARM WELCOME TO GIBBORS.

Received by Parishioners and Friends. Acting Mayor Headed Crowd, at Baltimore.

Baltimore, Aug. 27.—Cardinal Gibbons reached home after a tour of Europe and was received with open arms by his friends and parishioners. He came on a train which arrived at Union station shortly after 3 o'clock, accompanied by a party of clergymen and laymen who had met him in New York. When he alighted he was greeted by a crowd of at least 10,000 people, headed by Acting Mayor Henry Williams and Charles J. Bonaparte. Both these gentlemen made addresses of welcome, to which the cardinal responded feelingly, after which they entered carriages and were driven to the cathedral at the head of a procession which included all the prominent Catholic societies of the city, priests from the vicinity of Baltimore and Washington and many of the non-secular friends and admirers of his eminence.

The cardinal dismounted from his carriage and reviewed the procession from the steps of the Catholic club, opposite his residence, after which he addressed the congregation that filled the venerable cathedral to the doors. At the cathedral he confined himself almost entirely to a description of his visits to the pope and incidents showing the wonderful clearness of the pontiff's brain in spite of his advanced age.

MILLIONS ARE INVOLVED.

Riparian Rights on Cleveland Lake Front Declared Taxable.

Cleveland, Aug. 26.—The city annual board of equalization Monday adopted a resolution to the effect that riparian rights of those holding property on the lake front are taxable. Today the members will hear testimony regarding property owned on the lake front by the Lake Shore and Pennsylvania railway companies.

The lake front embraces a distance of four to five miles from Waverly to Willson avenues, on which are located a number of large manufacturing, and includes a lot of ground which is now in dispute between the city and several prominent railroads. Several millions of dollars are involved in the board's action.

LOOKING FOR DEMENTED DOCTRESS AND SONS.

Corning, N. Y., Aug. 27.—Dr. Nellie Poor, the Chicago woman who, with her two sons, caused excitement in an Erie train last Thursday night by rushing through the train brandishing a knife and crashing through the plate glass vestibule of the train, is being anxiously looked for by relatives in the hills about here.

FOUR MINERS KILLED BY A CABLE BREAKING.

Bloomington, Ills., Aug. 27.—Four miners were instantly killed at a mine in Chenao, this county, by the snapping of a cable supporting the cage. The men fell 247 feet. The dead: Barretto Buiseppe, Bobino Bria, Bobino Baltilla, Thomas Jones.

Cases of Scannell and Marks Called.

New York, Aug. 27.—The case against Fire Commissioner John J. Scannell and William L. Marks, a contractor in fire department supplies, was called in the criminal branch of the supreme court. The indictments charge Commissioner Scannell separately with wilful neglect of duty in respect to certain contracts for fire hose and Scannell and Marks jointly with conspiracy in the purchase of fire hose and other supplies. Counsel for the defendants asked for dismissal of indictments.

Paroled to Visit Parents.

Michigan City, Ind., Aug. 27.—William E. Hinchaw, serving a life sentence for the murder of his wife at Ellettsville, has been released from state prison on a 10-days' parole, issued by Governor Durbin, to visit his parents, who are reported fatally ill at their home near Winchester. Hinchaw formerly was a preacher and always has protested his innocence.

DRESS AND FASHION

LEADING FEATURES IN THE MODES OF THE SEASON.

The Forward Tilt or an Ascending Line From Front to Back—Smart Yachting Dress—Gossamer Material For the Daytime.

Perhaps the most striking line of the near future in dress will be the upward tendency from front to back. That the corset is at the root of this will readily be surmised. The corset, or, rather, the corset maker, is at the root of most modish matters nowadays. Dress-makers and tailors, too, are amiably agreeing to the disposal of flounces and crossway folds, these tapering off in front to fully half the depth reached behind.

To put the matter somewhat differently, a better explanation may be that a downward tendency from back to front is the aim of the up to date corset makers, who are shortening their latest models a good three-quarters of an inch at the back of the waist.

Thus the "altogether," taken in one comprehensive glance from head to foot and from the side, will be a pronounced tilt forward, slightly reminiscent, perchance, of the one time acquired "Grecian bend."

The first sketch, besides exemplifying to some extent this favorite line of fashion, shows a gown which is a perfect poem in itself. It is of ivory embroidered point d'esprit, almost covered with graduating applique tucks of ivory crepe de chine, the tucks arranged in a new manner, each showing a peep of the lace beneath, a deep perpendicular fold of crepe de chine on either side of the hips breaking the line of tuckings. The bodice pouches over a wide girdle or basque of deep cream guipure, and has a gold embroidered waistcoat. A mixture of lace and chiffon is introduced into the sleeves, with a soft little puff of the latter below the elbow.

The second cut shows a smart yachting coat appropriate to the season. This coat wrap is made of navy cloth and has a simulated undercoat of red cloth liberally strapped with the blue, and down the center of each strap runs a line of rich gold braid.

Certainly this season gossamer materials are being worn in the daytime which were not considered at all correct in the times that are past. Net with rings and spots and other devices, plain tulle, lace, the most gossamer of silk muslins, are worked with gold or silver threads and with minute pearls.

But the great novelty of the moment is without doubt small ribbons and minute rouleaux worked into designs as they used to be years ago. Looking back to the beginning of the nineteenth century, when the short empire waists were in vogue, we find the hems of the skirts were trimmed with interlaced ribbons, whether they formed either a series of diamonds or consecutive circles, and these played their part on the sleeves and the bodices.

Flowers are a great adjunct to the dress of the moment. We have flower fans which when closed look like a spray of blossoms and beautiful painted ones with butterflies and peacocks' feathers mingling with painted blooms, and ruffles are sewed over at the edge either with petals or small flowers.

Spiced Currants and Jam.

For spiced currants take seven pounds of currants, four pounds of sugar, one pint of vinegar, one tablespoonful of each of cinnamon and cloves and one tablespoonful of allspice. Boil to a jam, which will take two or three hours.

For currant jam boil one pint of currant juice with three pints of sugar and add four quarts of currants. Let it simmer until quite thick; then put it away in jars.

Ccv. Durbin Proposes to Impeach Sheriffs Who Allow Them to Take Place.

Indianapolis, Aug. 27.—Governor Durbin will impeach sheriffs who neglect to stop prize fights.

Governor Durbin's new tack is not to talk militia but to exercise his executive power through sheriffs. If he finds they wilfully fail to do their duty it is understood to be his plan to have the attorney general bring impeachment proceedings to oust them from office.

ENGLISH WORKINGMEN HERE.

Pittsburg and East Liverpool Two Places to Be Visited.

New York, Aug. 27.—On the Anchor line steamship Ethiopia, which arrived last night, came 12 workingmen, who have been sent to tour this country and study trades by an English paper. The men were selected by popular vote. A Nicol Simpson will act as conductor of the expedition.

"We will visit Washington, Pittsburg, Philadelphia, Cleveland, East Liverpool, O., Buffalo, Ottawa and Montreal," said Mr. Simpson. "We shall remain a few days in each city. The delegates come over here to gather information and study questions in which the British artisan is vitally interested. We will inquire into the conditions of the American wage earner, how they are housed and live, their hours, unions and other things of interest to us on the other side."

TURNED HOSE UPON HIM.

Non-Unionists Give a Deserter a Bath.

Cleveland, O., Aug. 27.—Because Thomas Oidecker, a non-union workman in the Crescent tin plate mill, deserted 25 of his non-union comrades, who still remain at work, they turned a water hose on him, drenching him thoroughly.

District Vice President Ward, of the Amalgamated association, called the attention of the mill officials to the action of their men and told them that if there was a repetition of such acts the union men would resent it. Oidecker had been working but a few days.

SULTAN WILL PAY INDEMNITY TO FRENCHMEN.

Constantinople, Aug. 27.—The amount of the indemnity which the sultan agrees to pay the Quays company for interference with its rights is 700,000 francs. The sultan will also pay 600,000 francs to a Frenchman on account of the seizing of his lands in Albania. The Quays company renounces for a year the clause in its concession regarding the transfer of the Quays to Turkey, only, it is believed, to save appearances for the sultan.

SOUTH SIDE

THE WATER QUESTION

One of Great Interest to Be Settled By Chester Council.

At the next meeting of the Chester council, which is scheduled to be held next Thursday evening, a warm session is expected. One of the weighty matters to be considered by the council is the third reading of the ordinance granting a 25-year franchise to the Southside Water company. This measure was to have come up at the meeting to have been held last Thursday evening, but as three members were absent, there was no meeting.

There seems to be some objection on the part of some of the members about the granting of the franchise, owing to the water plug clause in the ordinance. Some members claim that while the company has offered to place 30 water plugs about the town, the town is too young to have the plugs properly located. Even if the 30 plugs are located now they say it will only be a question of a few years until it will be necessary to have more water protection. They argue that the offer of the water company should be accepted.

THE DAWSON FAMILY

To Hold Its Annual Reunion Tomorrow—Big Crowd Expected.

The annual reunion of the Dawson family, which has been held here for several years, comes off tomorrow at Rock Springs. As usual the attendance will be big, as it has been in the past, visitors coming from all surrounding towns, including Steubenville, Beaver, Beaver Falls, Salem, Smith's Ferry, Georgetown, Pittsburg, Allegheny and other cities.

During the day a meeting of the various committees of the organization is to be held in the pavilion. It is likely that the next reunion will be held at the same place.

$250 for School Seats.

The Chester board of education at a recent meeting let the contract for the new seats to be placed in the new building now in course of erection at the corner of Third street and Carolina avenue. The contract calls for an expenditure of about $250. The seats will not be delivered until the last of September, and they are of the same design as the board secured for the new building at Sixth street last winter.

Judgment for Plaintiff.

The case of Samuel Cameron vs. John Rinehart, of East Liverpool, for $35, claimed due for hay, was heard to a jury at New Cumberland yesterday and the plaintiff was given a judgment for $25.12.

CHESTER NOTES.

Two more cars of material were received at the mill this morning.

John R. Donehoo, of New Cumberland, was a Chester visitor today.

The Methodist Episcopal church, of Mingo, have completed arrangements for their picnic, which will be at the park Friday.

The reproduction of the Passion Play pictures, which were shown at Rock Springs park last Sunday evening, has been secured for a park attraction for all of next week. This is one of the costliest attractions that has appeared at the park this season.

NEW LIFE INFUSED

Into the People of the West Virginia Panhandle By Trolley Road Building.

Wheeling, Aug. 27.—The district between Wheeling and Wellsburg along the river front is feeling the thrill of new life these days. The up-to-date railroad contractor with his horses and mules and gangs of laborers, and the engineer with his tripod and the odolite have invaded the field and are making the earth fly from the future roadbed of the Panhandle Traction company. Such a state of expectancy was never before known up around Short Creek. When agents of the new road asked the farmers about rights of way most of them said:

"That's my land. Go take what you want."

The farmers and landowners were shrewd enough to know that there will be a heavy demand for building property, to relieve the congestion in the city, as soon as the road is finished, so they worked hard for its construction.

This morning saw work on the roadbed renewed with more men added to the several forces already employed. In building this road the general contractors, Stringer & Hallock, have adopted methods more to be found on the big steam railroad jobs than trolley work. They have built camps and at different places along the route the laborers are housed and fed, thus preventing them from scattering over the country to their rifeer homes.

COMING TO THE FRONT

Columbiana County Up-to-Date in Many Ways.

The statement has gone out that Columbiana county shows up as the best in the world for telephones, there being according to population one phone for every 25 people, with prospect that the ratio will be decreased. There are but few villages and hamlets of our neighboring county that are not in touch with the larger cities by wire, while in many communities almost every farm home contains a telephone. The sturdy sons of the plow and reaper know their value, too, as they note current prices, and find a market for their produce by wire.

To illustrate: Winona, in this county, is but a small inland village, yet, notwithstanding, it is the headquarters of a telephone incorporation, and a link in the independent system, and operating a switch with more than 100 names on its roster, the majority of them being farmers of the surrounding neighborhood. In fact, the village or farmer of Columbiana county without telephone or free rural mail will soon be counted a back number—See-Bring News.

Making the Blind See.

Success in desperate cases by conservative treatment is the lesson often repeated and yet never quite sufficiently learned by any physician or surgeon. The infinite ingenuity behind the healing processes, the never renounced struggle toward normality, is an ever renewed source of wonder. All that is needed to elicit it is confidence in it, delay in doing anything radical, watchfulness to follow up the hints to action as they begin to show themselves.

We know of a living and happy patient who ten years ago had albuminuria retinitis from long existing Bright's disease despite what all the textbooks say as to "two years" in such cases. "Don't do the irrevocable thing until forced to do it" is the warning that has saved many organs and lives. Above all, never proceed with surgery ("the despair of medicine") until physiologic and medical methods have been exhausted.

The Wiener Klinischer Wochenschrift tells of the success of Herr Heller, director of an asylum for the blind, in educating the remnant of visual power retained by a "blind" child. There was only perception of light in a narrow field left, but this by education was made to yield such indications to the eager mind that after 14 months of endeavor the boy has very useful vision, can distinguish colors and forms and even can read.

There are possibly thousands of blind people who have renounced vision instead of cultivating it to a degree that would render the blind types useless.—American Medicine.

Apple Pie Order.

To feel in apple pie order is a phrase which dates back to Puritan times—to a certain Hepzibah Merton. It seems that every Saturday she was accustomed to bake two or three dozen apple pies, which were to last her family through the coming week. These she placed carefully on her pantry shelves, labeled for each day of the week, so that Tuesday's pies might not be confused with Thursday's nor those presumably large or intended for washing and sweeping days eaten when household labors were lighter. Aunt Hepzibah's "apple pie order" was known throughout the entire settlement and originated the well known saying.

London Bridges.

Here is the history of London's bridges in brief: Westminster bridge was begun in 1738 and finished in 1746. Blackfriars bridge in 1760 and finished in 1770. Waterloo bridge in 1811 and opened on June 18, 1817. Southwark Iron bridge in 1814 and finished in 1819 and the present London bridge in 1824, being opened on Aug. 1, 1831.

WARM WELCOME TO GIBBORS.

Received by Parishioners and Friends. Acting Mayor Headed Crowd, at Baltimore.

Baltimore, Aug. 27.—Cardinal Gibbons' roacher home after a tour of Europe and was received with open arms by his friends and parishioners. He came on a train which arrived at Union station shortly after 3 o'clock, accompanied by a party of clergymen and laymen who had met him in New York. When he alighted he was greeted by a crowd of at least 10,000 people, headed by Acting Mayor Henry Williams and Charles J. Bonaparte. Both these gentlemen made addresses of welcome, to which the cardinal responded feelingly, after which they entered carriages and were driven to the cathedral at the head of a procession which included all the prominent Catholic societies of the city, the priests from the vicinity of Baltimore and Washington and many of the non-secular friends and admirers of his eminence.

The cardinal dismounted from his carriage and reviewed the procession from the steps of the Catholic club, opposite his residence, after which he addressed the congregation that filled the venerable cathedral to the doors.

At the cathedral he confined himself almost entirely to a description of his visits to the pope and incidents showing the wonderful clearness of the pontiff's brain in spite of his advanced age.

MILLIONS ARE INVOLVED.

Riparian Rights on Cleveland Lake Front Declared Taxable.

Cleveland, Aug. 26.—The city annual board of equalization Monday adopted a resolution to the effect that riparian rights of those holding property on the lake front are taxable. Today the members will hear testimony regarding property owned on the lake front by the Lake Shore and Pennsylvania railway companies.

The lake front embraces a distance of four to five miles from Waverly to Willson avenues, on which are located a number of large manufacturing, and includes a lot of ground which is now in dispute between the city and several prominent railroads. Several millions of dollars are involved in the board's action.

THE LADY OF LYNN

By SIR WALTER BESANT

Copyright, 1900, by Sir Walter Besant

CHAPTER XIX.

FREE.

BY this time a whole year had passed since the pretended marriage and our submissiveness. Never was a magnificent property so destroyed and diminished in so short a time. Farms, lands, houses, were sold for what they would fetch—at half their value, a quarter of their value. All the money out at mortgage had been called in; all the money received at the quay and the counting house had been sent to his lordship's attorneys. In one short twelvemonth the destruction had been such that in June there was actually nothing left—nothing out of that princely fortune except the fleet of ships and the general business.

It was on the 15th of June—I remember the date well and shall always remember it. The Lady of Lynn had arrived two days before and we were moored off the quay. At 2 o'clock or thereabout one of the stable boys from the house came aboard bringing a message for me. A lady lodging at the Crown desired to see me immediately. The lady had arrived in the evening in a post chaise, having with her a maid. She had given no name, but in the morning had asked if my ship was in port, and, on learning that it was, she desired that a boy from the stables might carry this message to me.

I landed at our own quay. I say our own, but it was no longer ours—that is, Molly's quay. At the door of the counting house stood the manager in conversation with the captain of one of our ships. He beckoned me to speak with him. When he had finished his discourse with the captain, he turned to me.

"Mr. Pentecoste," he said, "the worst has now begun. Tell Captain Crowle. I should choke if I had to tell him. Alas, poor man! It seems as if the work of his life was ruined and destroyed." So saying, he handed me a letter to read. It was from my lord's attorneys, Messrs. Bisie & Son. "I suppose," said the manager, "that they are really acting for his lordship. Their power of attorney cannot be denied, can it? Mr. Redman, our attorney, says that there is nothing for it but obedience."

The letter was short:

We have noted your information conveyed in the last schedule. You are now instructed to proceed with the sale of one of the ships. Let her be sold as the stands on arriving in port with so much of the cargo as belongs to your house. My lord is urgently pressed for money and begs that there may be no delay. Meantime send a draft by the usual channel for moneys in hand. Your obedient servants, Bisie & Son, Attorneys.

"A draft for moneys in hand!" cried the manager. "There are no moneys in hand! And I have to sell without delay a tall ship, cargo and all as she stands. Without delay! Who is to buy that ship—without delay?"

I returned him the letter and shook my head. My ship perhaps was the one to be sold. She was the latest arrival. She was filled with wine. The cargo belonged altogether to the house. So I should be turned adrift when just within hail, so to speak, of becoming a captain. I could say nothing in consolation or in hope. I walked away, my heart as heavy as lead. Never before had I felt the true meaning of this ruin and waste. All around me the noble edifice built by Molly's grandfather and her father and continued by her guardian had been pulled down bit by bit.

But one felt the loss of a farm or a house very little. It was not until the ships, too, were threatened that the full enormity of the thing, the incredible wickedness of the conspirators, was borne in upon my mind. It threatened to ruin me, you see, as well as Molly.

Therefore I walked across the market place to the Crown inn more gloomy in my mind than I can describe. Hitherto, somehow, a ship seemed safe. No one would interfere with a ship. Like Lord Fylingdale himself, I was ready to ask whether a ship could be bought and sold—that is to say, I knew that she was often bought and sold, but I never thought that any of Molly's ships—any other ships as much as you please, but not Molly's ships—could be brought to the hammer.

The lady sent word that she would receive me. Imagine my surprise. She was none other than the Lady Anastasia. She was greatly changed in six months. I had seen her last, you remember, in January, when I met her in the park. She was then finely dressed, a handsome woman, with a winning manner and a smiling face. Thus she was when I met her. When I left her, she was a handsome woman married with a consuming wrath.

Now I should hardly have known her. She was plainly attired, without patches or paint, wearing a gray silk dress. But the chief change was not in her dress, but in her face. She was gaunt, and her cheeks were haggard. She looked like a woman who had recently suffered a severe illness and was, indeed, not yet fully recovered.

"Jack," she advanced, giving me her hand with her old graciousness—"you are very good to come when I call. It is the last time that you will ever call from me."

"But you would be revenged. And yet you suffered this monstrous fraud." "I was revenged. Yet why did I say nothing? Did I not say that you could never forgive me? Well, I have no excuse only when I said that women like me, with nothing to do, sometimes go mad after a man and for his sake cast away honor and care nothing for shame and ill repute. I say, Jack," she repeated earnestly, "that I make no excuse. I tell you nothing but the plain truth. Oh, how ugly it is!"

I said nothing. I only stood still, waiting for more.

"When I took off my domino in the vestry, my lord, with the man Purden, only being present, he was like a madman. That I expected. After raging for awhile and crying out that he was now ruined indeed and after cursing Mr. Purden for not destroying the registers he listened to Mr. Purden's advice that we should consider a way out of it. Accordingly, in my lodgings, the man Purden, who is the greatest inventor and encourager of every evil thing that lives, set forth the ease with which this marriage could be claimed unless there was any obstacle such as sudden illness which might be proved to have made Molly's presence impossible. In other words, we were to assure the unfortunate Molly that she was already married, and we were to act as if that was the fact. We ascertained without trouble that she had not left the house that morning. How? We sent the musicians to congratulate the bride, and the captain sallied forth in his wrath and drove them off."

"And to this you consented out of your passion for the man?" "Partly. There is always more than one reason, you know, for a woman's acts and words. In this case there was a bribe. I confess that I have always ardently desired jewels. I cannot have too many jewels. He promised, Jack, that I should have them all. Perhaps—I do not know—the promise of the jewels decided me. Oh, Jack, they were wonderful! No such bribe was ever offered to a woman before."

I gazed upon her with amazement. Truly an explanation complete! Yet what a confession for a proud woman to make! Love that made her trample on honor and truth and virtue and a bribe to quicken her footsteps! "And now," I said, "you are willing to make this story public?"

"I have thought about the business a good deal. It has caused me more annoyance than you would believe." Annoyance! She spoke of annoyance! "Besides, I have been cruelly abused. I have been the cause of that poor girl losing a great part, perhaps the whole, of her fortune. I have been robbed of the jewels. He swore to me a dozen times that he had never had them. I may by tardy confession save something from the wreck for that poor girl. He has wronged me in every way—in ways that no woman will or can forgive. I revenge my wrongs by making him a beggar a few weeks or months before he can come to the end of his money."

So in this distracted way she talked till one could not tell whether she was most noted by the thought of revenge or by pity for Molly or by a wholesome repentance of her sin. "Jack," she said, "your honest face is pulled out as long as my arm. I could laugh if I were not so miserable. Tell me what I should do next. Mind, I will do exactly what you bid me do. I have lived so long among kites, hawks, crows and birds of prey, with foul creatures and crawling reptiles, that merely to talk to an honest man softens and subdues me. Take me in the humor, Jack. Tomorrow or next day, should the idea of the man possess my soul again, if he should stand over me and take my hand, I know not—I know not what would happen. Perhaps even for Molly's sake I could not resist him. I am but a poor, weak, miserable woman. And he has led me hither and sent me thither and made me his slave so long that he has become part of my life. Quick, then, Jack—tell me what to do!"

"Come with me," I said. So she wrapped herself in a long cloak, not of pink silk, and she put on a domino, and I led her to Mr. Redman's office. And here I begged her to let me set down in writing what she had told me, but in fewer words, while Mr. Redman stood over me and read what I wrote and as I wrote it. "The story, your ladyship," he said, "is the most remarkable that I have ever heard. You will now sign in presence of witnesses—my clerk and one whom he will bring from the custom house will serve."

So she signed in the same bold, running hand that we had seen in the registers. "What next?" she asked. "Why, madam, we have to consider the next step. It is obvious that the confession removes the whole of the difficulty and explains what has hitherto seemed inexplicable. How, it was asked, could the place of the bride be filled at the last moment and without previous knowledge that it would have to be filled? And who was the woman thus duly married and actually, though under a false name, made Countess of Fylingdale, who did not step forward and claim her rights? Now, madam, the question is answered. You knew, but my lord did not know, that the bride could not come to the church. You were there therefore to take her place. You joined in this conspiracy and kept silence for the reasons contained in this document."

"Quite so. And now, sir, what next? Will you bring my lord to justice? Shall I have to give evidence against him?" "Madam, I know not. You have done your best, not so much to repair a great wrong as to stop further wrong. If I understand matters aright, it will be impossible to recover anything that has been taken."

"You might as well hope to recover a sack of coals already burned."

"Therefore, what we have to do first is to stop further pillage. Next, I apprehend, we must make it clear that your signature in the register was false."

Lady Anastasia rose and put on her domino again.

"I am going back to London, sir. My house is in Hanover square, where I am to be heard of for the present. It was a bad day's work when I was married in that pink cloak. It may prove a worse day's work when I confessed."

"Nay, madam," I said quietly. "Can it be a bad day's work to stop a cruel and unfeeling robbery?"

"I have done my part, gentlemen, for good or for ill. In a few weeks or months the man would have begged himself as well as that poor girl. Now he is beggared already. I know not what he will do nor whither he will turn."

So I led her back to the Crown, and that same day she took her departure, and I have never seen her since. One letter, it is true, I had from her, of which I will tell you in due course.

Then I returned to Mr. Redman.

"Jack," he said, "I am going without further discussion to warn the manager not to send any more money to these attorneys and to disregard their orders. I shall write at once warning them that we have now in our hands clear proof that my client is not married to Lord Fylingdale and that we are now considering in what manner we should proceed with regard to the large sums that have been remitted by his orders. This, Jack, is the way of lawyers. We write such a letter, knowing that we shall not proceed further in this direction, for the scandal would be very great and the profit would be very small. Besides, there is the awkward fact that we made no protest, but submitted. Yet sure and certain I am that the other side will not dare to go into court, being conscious of guilt, yet not knowing how much we have learned."

My story is nearly finished. Molly recovered her freedom, with the loss of by far the greater part of her fortune. She had, indeed, nothing left except her fleet and the trade carried on by the firm in which she was sole partner. Still she remained the richest woman in the town.

Here follows the letter from the Lady Anastasia. "My dear Jack," she said, "news reaches Lynn slowly, if it gets there at all; therefore I hasten to inform you that an end has come, perhaps the end that you would desire. My lord is no more. I am a widow. Yet I mourn not. My husband during the last 12 months had acted as one no longer in command of himself. I cannot think, indeed, that he had been in his right mind since he entered upon that great crime of which you know. He would have gone from bad to worse, and I should have suffered more and still more. He killed himself. He placed the muzzle of a pistol within his mouth and so killed himself."

"It was yesterday. I went to see him. I had to tell him what I had done. I expected he would kill me."

Perhaps it would have been better had he done so.

"I found him with his attorney, a man named Bisie, whom I have seen with him frequently."

"Pray, madam, take a chair. I am your humble servant. You can go," said my lord. "You have my instructions, Mr. Bisie. Order the manager to proceed with the sale of the ships."

"With submission, my lord. We can send him orders, but we can only make him obey by proceeding according to law. He finds excuses. He makes delays. He talks of sacrificing the ships to a forced sale."

"You will not proceed according to law, my lord," I told him.

"Why, madam?"

"Because I have been to Lynn myself and have explained certain points in connection with the marriage service in St. Nicholas' church."

"My lord looked at me in his cold way as if neither surprised nor moved."

"Mr. Bisie," he said, "I will communicate again with you." So the attorney left us. Then he turned again to me.

"My lord," I repeated, "I have made a statement of all the facts."

"I thank you, madam; I thank you with all my heart. Let me not detain you."

"He said no more, and I rose. But the door was thrown open, and Mr. Purden walked in without being announced."

"Ha," he said, seeing me, "we are all three, then, together again! My lord, I will not waste your time. I have come to explain that since you have refused to perform your compact you cannot complain if I have broken up the whole business."

"I thought I had ordered you out of my presence, sir?"

"So you did; so you did. I have only come to say that I have this day drawn up a full confession of the conspiracy into which I was drawn by your lordship, deceived against my better judgment by the promise of a large sum of money."

"Lord Fylingdale pointed to the door,"

"You can go, sir," he said. So the man Purden went away.

"Then he turned to me. 'Anastasia, we were friends once. I treated you shamefully in the matter of the jewels. Things have gone badly with me of late. I seem to have no luck. Perhaps I have somehow lost my judgment. That money has done me no good.'

"Curse that scoundrel, Sam Semple! It is now all over. The game is played. Every game comes to an end in time. You had better leave me, Anastasia. You have had your revenge. Let that consideration console you."

"I said no more, but left him. It was in the afternoon. Two hours later they heard an explosion. They ran to find the cause. Lord Fylingdale was lying dead on the floor."

"So, Jack, we are all punished, and none of us can complain. For my part I am going into the country, where I have a small dowry house. The solitude and the dullness will, I dare say, kill me, but I do not care about living any longer."

ANASTASIA. She did, however, pass into a better mind, for I heard some time after that she had married the dean of the neighboring cathedral, not under the name of Lady Fylingdale, which she never assumed, but that of her first husband.

As to the other confederates, the poet, the colonel and the parson, I never heard anything more about them, nor do I expect now that I ever shall.

The rest of Molly's history, dear reader, belongs to me and not to the world. THE END.

ISLAND FOR LEPER COLONY

Barri, Lying South of Luzon, Is Recommended by Army Board.

Some time ago a board of army officers was appointed to examine the Batanes islands, lying south of Luzon, with a view to the selection of an island for the segregation of lepers, says the Washington Post. The report of the board has been received at the war department.

It recommends the island of Barri, which is said to be uninhabited and of sufficient size, two miles by one mile, to accommodate the lepers of that district. Its water supply is reported as good, soil fertile, timber good and geographical situation reasonably near Luzon. The disadvantages were stated as, first, proximity to the island of Fuga and, second, the fact that at certain seasons the group of islands to which it pertains is swept by typhoons.

Weather Signals For Farmers.

Farmers who live along the lines of rural free delivery mail routes are to have the advantage of the United States weather bureau's forecasts of the weather. All they will have to do will be to watch the mail cart as it goes by. Arrangements are being made by the postoffice department at Washington and the weather bureau to have the mail carts equipped with signals, which will be displayed on the sides, says the Chicago Record-Herald. They will be as conspicuous as possible, so that they can be read at a considerable distance from the highways. Mail carriers will receive their weather predictions for the day before they start on their routes in the morning and will put up the proper signals on both sides of their carts.

United States Army's Crack Shot.

Private Schmidt of Company D, Fourteenth United States infantry, now camped at the rifle range near Mount Clemens, Mich., recently made a score at shooting 600 yards that broke the record of the whole army, says the New York Times. The target was a dummy man. Nineteen out of 20 of his shots took effect in such parts of the dummy that if it had been a living body they would have caused instant death, while the twentieth shot would have inflicted a serious or fatal wound. Schmidt's achievement is said to be not only unparalleled in United States army rifle shooting records, but also without precedent in similar practice anywhere in the world.

Symbols of Success

A vacant chair and a portrait on the wall—strange symbols of success! Yet, in many a home these are the symbols of the success of the man who did not find time to care for his health, or neglected the increasing warnings of disease which Nature gave him.

When the stomach is "weak" and food is imperfectly digested and assimilated, it is only a question of time until the break-down comes. The stomach is the very center of vital power and must be kept in health if sickness is to be avoided. Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. It increases the supply of pure, rich blood, and gives the body strength to withstand the strain put upon it by the struggle for success.

"I was a sufferer from what the doctors called indigestion, but after trying several eminent physicians failed to get a cure," writes Mr. Frank Mericle, of Independence, Jackson Co., Mo., Box 473. "Some of my symptoms were soreness in pit of stomach, fullness, tired feeling, constipation; sometimes soreness would extend to bowels. Some one recommended me to take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, which I did, and after taking only a few bottles of 'Discovery' and your 'Pleasant Pellets' can say I derived more benefit from them than any other medicine I ever tried. I began to gain flesh from the start. Have recommended it to others and will continue to do so."

THE LADY OF LYNN

By SIR WALTER BESANT

Copyright, 1900, by Sir Walter Besant

CHAPTER XIX.

FREE.

BY this time a whole year had passed since the pretended marriage and our submission. Never was a magnificent property so destroyed and diminished in so short a time. Farms, lands, houses, were sold for what they would fetch—at half their value, a quarter of their value. All the money out at mortgage had been called in; all the money received at the quay and the counting house had been sent to his lordship's attorneys. In one short twelvemonth the destruction had been such that in June there was actually nothing left—nothing out of that princely fortune except the fleet of ships and the general business.

It was on the 15th of June—I remember the date well and shall always remember it. The Lady of Lynn had arrived two days before and we were moored off the quay. At 2 o'clock or thereabout one of the stable boys from the house came aboard bringing a message for me. A lady lodging at the Crown desired to see me immediately. The lady had arrived in the evening in a post chaise, having with her a maid. She had given no name, but in the morning had asked if my ship was in port, and on learning that it was, she desired that a boy from the stables might carry this message to me.

I landed at our own quay. I say our own, but it was no longer ours—that is, Molly's quay. At the door of the counting house stood the manager in conversation with the captain of one of our ships. He beckoned me to speak with him. When he had finished his discourse with the captain, he turned to me.

"Mr. Pentecost," he said, "the worst has now begun. Tell Captain Crowle. I should choke if I had to tell him. Alas, poor man! It seems as if the work of his life was ruined and destroyed." So saying, he handed me a letter to read. It was from my lord's attorneys, Messrs. Biscie & Son. "I suppose," said the manager, "that they are really acting for his lordship. Their power of attorney cannot be denied, can it? Mr. Redman, our attorney, says that there is nothing for it but obedience."

The letter was short:

"We have noted your information conveyed in the last schedule. You are now instructed to proceed with the sale of one of the ships. Let her be sold as the stands on arriving in port with so much of the cargo as belongs to your house. My lord is urgently pressed for money and begs that there may be no delay. Meantime send a draft by one usual channel for moneys in hand. Your obedient servants, Biscie & Son, Attorneys."

"A draft for moneys in hand!" cried the manager. "There are no moneys in hand! And I have to sell without delay a tall ship, cargo and all as she stands. Without delay! Who is to buy that ship—without delay?"

I returned him the letter and shook my head. My ship perhaps was the one to be sold. She was the latest arrival. She was filled with wine. The cargo belonged altogether to the house. So I should be turned adrift when just within hail, so to speak, of becoming a captain. I could say nothing in consolation or in hope. I walked away, my heart as heavy as lead. Never before had I felt the true meaning of this ruin and waste. All around me the noble edifice built by Molly's grandfather and her father and continued by her guardian had been pulled down bit by bit.

But one felt the loss of a farm or a house very little. It was not until the ships, too, were threatened that the full enormity of the thing, the incredible wickedness of the conspirators, was borne in upon my mind. It threatened to ruin me, you see, as well as Molly.

Therefore I walked across the market place to the Crown inn more gloomy in my mind than I can describe. Hitherto, somehow, a ship seemed safe. No one would interfere with a ship. Like Lord Fylingdale himself, I was ready to ask whether a ship could be bought and sold—that is to say, I knew that she was often bought and sold, but I never thought that any of Molly's ships—any other ships as much as you please, but not Molly's ships—could be brought to the hammer.

The lady sent word that she would receive me. Imagine my surprise. She was none other than the Lady Anastasia. She was greatly changed in six months. I had seen her last, you remember, in January, when I met her in the park. She was then finely dressed, a handsome woman, with a winning manner and a smiling face. Thus she was when I met her. When I left her, she was a handsome woman marred with a consuming wrath.

Now I should hardly have known her. She was plainly attired, without patches or paint, wearing a gray silk dress. But the chief change was not in her dress, but in her face. She was pale, and her cheeks were haggard. She looked like a woman who had recently suffered a severe illness and was, indeed, not yet fully recovered.

"Jack!"—she advanced, giving me her hand with her old graciousness—"you are very good to come when I call. It is the last time that you will obey any call from me."

"Why the last time, madam?"

"Because, Jack, I am now going to make thee my bitter enemy—yes, my enemy for life." She tried to smile, but her eyes grew humid. "I can never be regarded henceforth as anything else. You will despise me; you will curse me. Yet I must needs speak."

"Madam, I protest I know not what you mean."

"And I, Jack, I protest I know not how to begin. Do you remember last January, when we talked together? Let me begin there—yes, it will be best to begin there. I do not think I could begin at the other end. It would be like a bath of ice cold water in January."

"I remember our conversation, madam."

"You told me—what was it you told me? Something about a certain box or case of jewels?"

"Molly's jewels. Yes, I told you how your lordship seized upon them at the first when he claimed control over Molly's fortune."

"You told me that. It was in January. He had seized upon them six months before. The thing surprised me. He had always told me that he could not get those jewels, and Jack, you see, they were my own."

"Yours, madam? But they were Molly's."

"Not at all. Molly after her marriage had nothing. All became my lord's property. The jewels were mine. Jack, mine by promise and compact."

I understood nothing.

"I have seen in France the women kneeling at the boxes where they confess to the priest. Jack, will you be my priest? I can confess to you what I could never confess to Molly, though I have wronged her. Jack, oh, my priest! Here she fell on her knees and clasped her hands. 'No, no,' she cried. 'I will not rise—on my knees, on my knees, not to ask your pardon, but for the shame and the disgrace and the villainy!'"

"Madam, I pray—I entreat."

I took her by both hands. I half lifted her and half assisted her. She sank into an armchair, sobbing and crying, and covered her face with her hands. She was not play acting. No, no. It was real sorrow, true shame. Oh, there was revenge as well. No doubt there was revenge. If she had been wicked, she had also been wronged. Presently she recovered a little. Then she sat up and began to talk.

"I am the most miserable woman in the world, and I deserve my misery. Jack, when you go back to your ship fall on your knees and thank God that you are poor and that Molly has been robbed of her fortune and is also poor. Oh, to be born rich—believe me, it is a thing most terrible. It makes men like Lord Fylingdale, who have nothing to do but to follow pleasure—such pleasure! Ah, merciful heaven, such pleasure! And it makes women, Jack, like me. We, too, follow pleasure like the men. We become gamblers. There is no pleasure for me like the pleasure of gambling. We fall in love for the pleasure and whim of it till we are slaves to men who treat us worse than they treat their dogs, worse than they treat their lackeys. Then we forget honor and honesty; then we throw away reputation and good name. We accept recklessly shame and dishonor. My name has become a byword. But what of that? I have been a man's slave. I have done his bidding."

"But how, madam—still I understood very little of this talk, yet became suspicious when she spoke thus of the jewels—'how came Molly's jewels to be your own?'"

"I tell you, Jack, by promise and compact. I must go back to another discourse with you. It was on a certain evening a year ago. You had made the fine discovery that Lord Fylingdale was a gamester and the rest of it. You told me. You also told me that Molly would not keep her promise and would certainly not be at the church in the morning. Do you remember?"

"I remember that we talked about things."

"We did. Go back a month or two earlier. By a most monstrous deception I was brought here. I was told first that it was in order to further some political object, which I did not believe; next, to help him in getting the command of this money—some women, I said, easily lose their sense of honor and of truth when they want to please their lovers. As for marriage, he declared for the hundredth time that there was but one woman in all the world whom he would marry—myself. Now do you understand? He had deceived me. Very well. Then I would deceive him. At first my purpose was to await in the church the coming of the bride and expose the character of the man. Since she was not coming I would take her place."

"What? It was you, then—you—"

"Yes, Jack. I was the woman you saw at the rails. I had a pink silk cloak like that of Molly. I am about the same height as Molly. I wore a domino, as had been arranged. You took me for Molly."

"But if you were the bride—"

"I was the bride. I am the Countess of Fylingdale—for my sins and sorrows—his wretched wife."

"But you would be revenged. And yet you suffered this monstrous fraud."

"I was revenged. Yet why did I say nothing? Did I not say that you could never forgive me? Well, I have no excuse only when I said that women like me, with nothing to do, sometimes go mad after a man and for his sake cast away honor and care nothing for shame and ill repute. I say, Jack," she repeated earnestly, "that I make no excuse. I tell you nothing but the plain truth. Oh, how ugly it is!"

I said nothing. I only stood still, waiting for more.

"When I took off my domino in the vestry, my lord, with the man Purden, only being present, he was like a madman. That I expected. After raging for awhile and crying out that he was now ruined indeed and after cursing Mr. Purden for not destroying the registers he listened to Mr. Purden's advice that we should consider a way out of it. Accordingly, in my lodgings, the man Purden, who is the greatest inventor and encourager of every evil thing that lives, set forth the ease with which this marriage could be claimed unless there was any obstacle such as sudden illness which might be proved to have made Molly's presence impossible. In other words, we were to assure the unfortunate Molly that she was already married, and we were to act as if that was the fact. We ascertained without trouble that she had not left the house that morning. How? We sent the musicians to congratulate the bride, and the captain sallied forth in his wrath and drove them off."

"And to this you consented out of your passion for the man?"

"Partly. There is always more than one reason, you know, for a woman's acts and words. In this case there was a bribe, I confess that I have always ardently desired jewels. I cannot have too many jewels. He promised, Jack, that I should have them all. Perhaps—I do not know—the promise of the jewels decided me. Oh, Jack, they were wonderful! No such bribe was ever offered to a woman before."

I gazed upon her with amazement. Truly an explanation complete! Yet what a confession for a proud woman to make! Love that made her trample on honor and truth and virtue and a bribe to quicken her footsteps!

"And now," I said, "you are willing to make this story public?"

"I have thought about the business a good deal. It has caused me more annoyance than you would believe." Annoyance! She spoke of annoyance! "Besides, I have been cruelly abused. I have been the cause of that poor girl losing a great part, perhaps the whole, of her fortune. I have been robbed of the jewels. He swore to me a dozen times that he had never had them. I may by tardy confession save something from the wreck for that poor girl. He has wronged me in every way—in ways that no woman will or can forgive. I revenge my wrongs by making him a beggar a few weeks or months before he can come to the end of his money."

So in this distracted way she talked till one could not tell whether she was moved by the thought of revenge or by pity for Molly or by a wholesome repentance of her sin.

"Jack," she said, "your honest face is pulled out as long as my arm. I could laugh if I were not so miserable. Tell me what I should do next. Mind, I will do exactly what you bid me do. I have lived so long among kites, hawks, crows and birds of prey, with foul creatures and crawling reptiles, that merely to talk to an honest man softens and subdues me. Take me in the humor, Jack. Tomorrow or next day, should the idea of the man possess my soul again, if he should stand over me and take my hand, I know not—I know not what would happen. Perhaps even for Molly's sake I could not resist him. I am but a poor, weak, miserable woman. And he has led me hither and sent me thither and made me his slave so long that he has become part of my life. Quick, then, Jack—tell me what to do!"

"Come with me," I said.

So she wrapped herself in a long cloak, not of pink silk, and she put on a domino, and I led her to Mr. Redman's office. And here I begged her to let me set down in writing what she had told me, but in fewer words, while Mr. Redman stood over me and read what I wrote and as I wrote it.

"The story, your ladyship," he said, "is the most remarkable that I have ever heard. You will now sign in presence of witnesses—my clerk and one whom he will bring from the custom house will serve."

So she signed in the same bold, running hand that we had seen in the registers.

"What next?" she asked.

"Why, madam, we have to consider the next step. It is obvious that the confession removes the whole of the difficulty and explains what has hitherto seemed inexplicable. How, it was asked, could the place of the bride be filled at the last moment and without previous knowledge that it would have to be filled? And who was the woman thus duly married and actually, though under a false name, made Countess of Fylingdale, who did not step forward and claim her rights? Now, madam, the question is answered. You knew, but my lord did not know, that the bride could not come to the church. You were there therefore to take her place. You joined in this conspiracy and kept silence for the reasons contained in this document."

"Quite so. And now, sir, what next? Will you bring my lord to justice? Shall I have to give evidence against him?"

"Madam, I know not. You have done your best, not so much to repair a great wrong as to stop further wrong. If I understand matters aright, it will be impossible to recover anything that has been taken."

"You might as well hope to recover a sack of coals already burned."

"Therefore, what we have to do first is to stop further pillage. Next, I apprehend, we must make it clear that your signature in the register was false."

Lady Anastasia rose and put on her domino again.

"I am going back to London, sir. My house is in Hanover square, where I am to be heard of for the present. It was a bad day's work when I was married in that pink cloak. It may prove a worse day's work when I confessed."

"Nay, madam," I said quietly. "Can it be a bad day's work to stop a cruel and unfeeling robbery?"

"I have done my part, gentlemen, for good or for ill. In a few weeks or months the man would have begged himself as well as that poor girl. Now he is begged already. I know not what he will do nor whether he will turn."

So I led her back to the Crown, and that same day she took her departure, and I have never seen her since. One letter, it is true, I had from her, of which I will tell you in due course.

Then I returned to Mr. Redman.

"Jack," he said, "I am going without further discussion to warn the manager not to send any more money to these attorneys and to disregard their orders. I shall write at once warning them that we have now in our hands clear proof that my client is not married to Lord Fylingdale and that we are now considering in what manner we should proceed with regard to the large sums that have been remitted by his orders. This, Jack, is the way of lawyers. We write such a letter, knowing that we shall not proceed further in this direction, for the scandal would be very great and the profit would be very small. Besides, there is the awkward fact that we made no protest, but submitted. Yet sure and certain I am that the other side will not dare to go into court, being conscious of guilt, yet not knowing how much we have learned."

My story is nearly finished. Molly recovered her freedom, with the loss of by far the greater part of her fortune. She had, indeed, nothing left except her feet and the trade carried on by the firm in which she was sole partner. Still she remained the richest woman in the town.

Here follows the letter from the Lady Anastasia. "My dear Jack," she said, "news reaches Lynn slowly. If it gets there at all; therefore I hasten to inform you that an end has come, perhaps the end that you would desire. My lord is no more. I am a widow. Yet I mourn not. My husband during the last 12 months had acted as one no longer in command of himself. I cannot think, indeed, that he had been in his right mind since he entered upon that great crime of which you know. He would have gone from bad to worse, and I should have suffered more and still more. He killed himself. He placed the muzzle of a pistol within his mouth and so killed himself."

"It was yesterday. I went to see him. I had to tell him what I had done. I expected he would kill me."

Perhaps it would have been better had he done so.

"I found him with his attorney, a man named Biscie, whom I have seen with him frequently."

"Pray, madam, take a chair. I am your humble servant. You can go," said my lord. "You have my instructions, Mr. Biscie. Order the manager to proceed with the sale of the ships."

"With submission, my lord. We can send him orders, but we can only make him obey by proceeding according to law. He finds excuses. He makes delays. He talks of sacrificing the ships to a forced sale."

"You will not proceed according to law, my lord," I told him.

"Why, madam?"

"Because I have been to Lynn myself and have explained certain points in connection with the marriage service in St. Nicholas' church."

"My lord looked at me in his cold way as if neither surprised nor moved. 'Mr. Biscie,' he said, 'I will communicate again with you.' So the attorney left us. Then he turned again to me."

"My lord," I repeated, "I have made a statement of all the facts."

"I thank you, madam; I thank you with all my heart. Let me not detain you."

"He said no more, and I rose. But the door was thrown open, and Mr. Purden walked in without being announced."

"Ha," he said, seeing me, "we are all three, then, together again! My lord, I will not waste your time. I have come to explain that since you have refused to perform your compact you cannot complain if I have broken up the whole business."

"I thought I had ordered you out of my presence, sir?"

"So you did; so you did. I have only come to say that I have this day drawn up a full confession of the conspiracy into which I was drawn by your lordship, deceived against my better judgment by the promise of a large sum of money."

"Lord Fylingdale pointed to the door,

"You can go, sir," he said. So the man Purden went away.

"Then he turned to me. 'Anastasia, we were friends once. I treated you shamefully in the matter of the jewels. Things have gone badly with me of late. I seem to have no luck. Perhaps I have somehow lost my judgment. That money has done me no good.'

"'Curse that scoundrel, Sam Semp! It is now all over. The game is played. Every game comes to an end in time. You had better leave me, Anastasia. You have had your revenge. Let that consideration console you.'

"I said no more, but left him. It was in the afternoon. Two hours later they heard an explosion. They ran to find the cause. Lord Fylingdale was lying dead on the floor."

"So, Jack, we are all punished, and none of us can complain. For my part I am going into the country, where I have a small dower house. The solitude and the dullness will, I dare say, kill me, but I do not care about living any longer."

ANASTASIA. She did, however, pass into a better mind, for I heard some time after that she had married the dean of the neighboring cathedral, not under the name of Lady Fylingdale, which she never assumed, but that of her first husband.

As to the other confederates, the poet, the colonel and the parson, I never heard anything more about them, nor do I expect now that I ever shall.

The rest of Molly's history, dear reader, belongs to me and not to the world. THE END.

ISLAND FOR LEPER COLONY

Barri, Lying South of Luzon, Is Recommended by Army Board.

Some time ago a board of army officers was appointed to examine the Batanes islands, lying south of Luzon, with a view to the selection of an island for the segregation of lepers, says the Washington Post. The report of the board has been received at the war department.

It recommends the island of Barri, which is said to be uninhabited and of sufficient size, two miles by one mile, to accommodate the lepers of that district. Its water supply is reported as good, soil fertile, timber good and geographical situation reasonably near Luzon. The disadvantages were stated as, first, proximity to the island of Fuga and, second, the fact that at certain seasons the group of islands to which it pertains is swept by typhoons.

Weather Signals For Farmers.

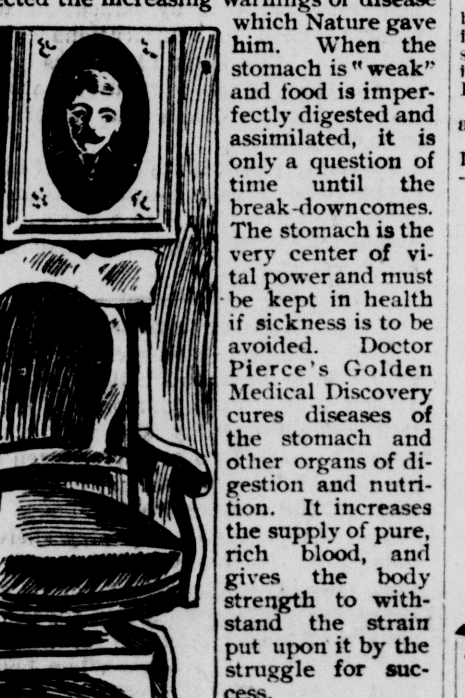

Farmers who live along the lines of rural free delivery mail routes are to have the advantage of the United States weather bureau's forecasts of the weather. All they will have to do will be to watch the mail cart as it goes by. Arrangements are being made by the postoffice department at Washington and the weather bureau to have the mail carts equipped with signals, which will be displayed on the sides, says the Chicago Record-Herald. They will be as conspicuous as possible, so that they can be read at a considerable distance from the highways. Mail carriers will receive their weather predictions for the day before they start on their routes in the morning and will put up the proper signals on both sides of their carts.

United States Army's Crack Shot.

Private Schmidt of Company D, Fourteenth United States infantry, now camped at the rifle range near Mount Clemens, Mich., recently made a score at shooting 600 yards that broke the record of the whole army, says the New York Times. The target was a dummy man. Nineteen out of 20 of his shots took effect in such parts of the dummy that if it had been a living body they would have caused instant death, while the twentieth shot would have inflicted a serious or fatal wound. Schmidt's achievement is said to be not only unparalleled in United States army rifle shooting records, but also without precedent in similar practice anywhere in the world.

Symbols of Success

A vacant chair and a portrait on the wall—strange symbols of success! Yet, in many a home these are the symbols of the success of the man who did not find time to care for his health, or neglected the increasing warnings of disease.

which Nature gave him. When the stomach is "weak" and food is imperfectly digested and assimilated, it is only a question of time until the break-down comes. The stomach is the very center of vital power and must be kept in health if sickness is to be avoided. Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. It increases the supply of pure, rich blood, and gives the body strength to withstand the strain put upon it by the struggle for success.

"I was a sufferer from what the eminent physicians failed to get a cure," writes Mr. Frank Mericle, of Independence, Jackson Co., Mo., Box 473. "Some of my symptoms were soreness in pit of stomach, fullness, tired feeling, constipation; sometimes soreness would extend to bowels. Some one recommended me to take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, which I did, and after taking only a few bottles of 'Discovery' and your 'Pleasant Pellets' can say I derived more benefit from them than any other medicine I ever tried. I began to gain flesh from the start. Have recommended it to others and will continue to do so."

STRIKERS IN CLASH.

Mayor of Canal Dover, O., Accused of Hitting Man With a Club.

ASKED THE SHERIFF FOR HELP.

Later Declared the Town Did Not Need Protection and He Would Deputize Constables—Slight Gains Made by Combine About Pittsburg.

Canal Dover, O., Aug. 27.—There was a slight clash here between the authorities and strikers, when a train stopped at the sheet steel mills and let off a colored waiter, who had been brought from Pittsburg to work at the mill boarding house.

A crowd of strikers at once surrounded the man and demanded his business. The mayor and city police tried to disperse the crowd, and, it is claimed, the mayor hit one of the strikers with a club, but this he denied. The colored man was sent out of town last night. The mayor called on the sheriff for help to protect the mill property and persons who desire to go into the mills. The sheriff replied that the town did not need protection and he would depute constables.

Pittsburg, Aug. 27.—Slight gains were made all along the line by the combine in the local strike situation. This led some of the most prominent manufacturers to declare that the strike was already won by the United States Steel corporation, and that it was only a question of some weeks for the men to realize it. President Shaffer and other Amalgamated officials asserted that gains had been made by the strikers. National Organizer John Pierce said that the strikers had won their fight.

MITCHELL WAS CAUTIOUS.

Declined to Blindly Call Out Miners. Easley and White Not Seeking Magnates.

New York, Aug. 27.—Ralph M. Easley, secretary of the National Civic Federation, and Henry White, secretary of the United Garment Workers of America, arrived here from Pittsburg.

Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, also arrived in the city coming from Buffalo en route to Washington. Mr. Gompers was in conference with Mr. Easley and Mr. White, but it was said the conference resulted in no plan of action. Mr. Easley said:

"Mr. White and I did not go to Pittsburg to make any proposition to Mr. Shaffer, nor have we been authorized to make any proposition to the steel trust managers. We went there to get information, and, quite by chance, we met Prof. Jenks, the trust expert of the industrial commission, and John Mitchell, president of the United Mine Workers of America, and the four of us went to see President Shaffer. We merely wanted to be informed of the exact situation and see whether there was any opening for the good offices of our conciliation board. Mr. Mitchell, for his part, wanted information because he had been asked to call out 280,000 miners on a sympathetic strike, and was not willing to 'go it blind.' We had no proposition to make, and we did not seek authority to act for the Amalgamated association. We merely made it clear that we were at the service of both sides in an effort to reach a settlement."

"We are ready," Mr. Easley added, "to endeavor to bring the contending factors to an understanding, but we have made no offers to either side. Such an offer might do more harm than good."

Mr. Easley said in conclusion that he did not expect to see Messrs. Morgan or Schwab and that he was not trying to obtain a conference with them.

COMBINE SHEET MILL ORDERED DISMANTLED.

Wheeling, Aug. 27.—Manager Wilson of the Aetna Standard sheet plant of the American Sheet Steel company, received orders from the general offices of the company to dismantle sheet mill No. 1 at this place and ship the machinery to Vandergrift, Pa. The work will be started at once. Mr. Wilson does not know whether or not this is the starting of the carrying out of the threat to take plants from the Wheeling district owing to the strong front made here by the strikers.

KNIGHTS SPECIAL WRECKED; ENGINEER DEAD.

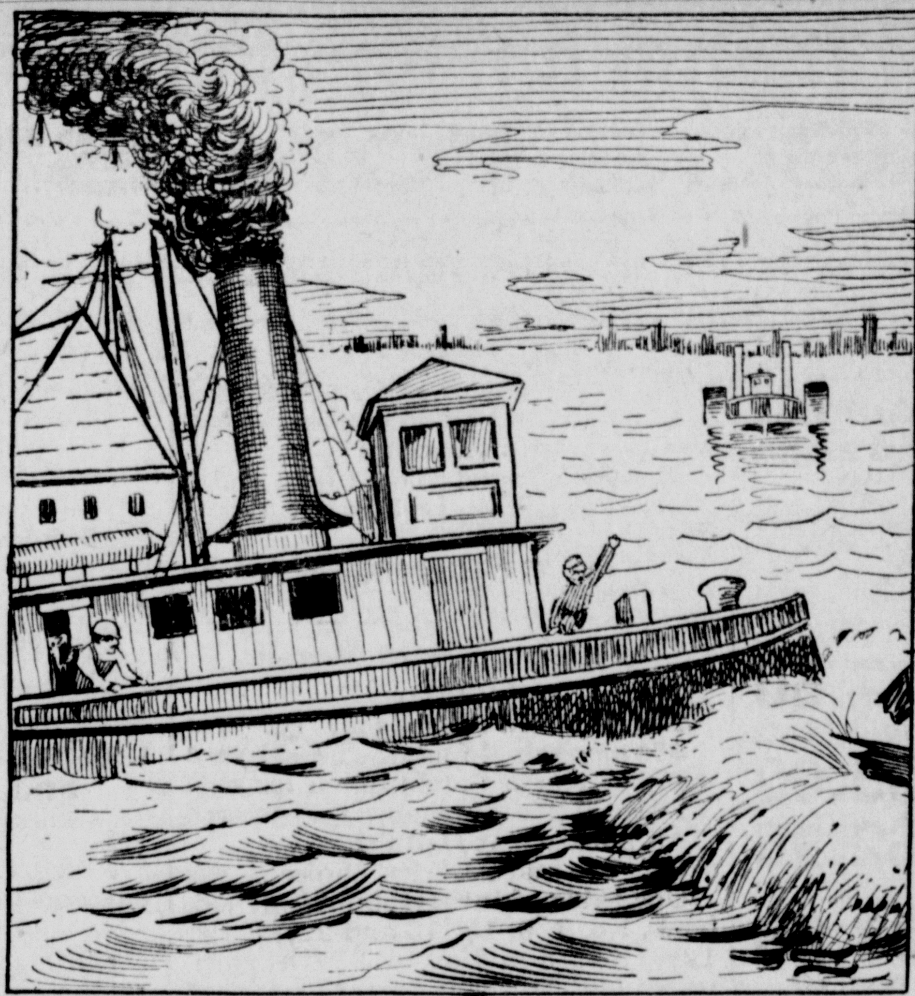

Barnesville, O., Aug. 27.—The Baltimore and Ohio special, running as "second 47," carrying Knapp Commandery No. 40, Knights Templar, from Ridgway, Pa., and Knights from Pittsburg to the Louisville triennial convocation, was wrecked between Barnesville and Spencers. Engineer Milo Francis, of Newark, was killed and Fireman Walter Bosscowen, of Newark, was possibly fatally injured.

GRANT'S RETREAT.

The General Went When a Policeman's Club Pointed the Way.

Speaking of nightsticks reminds me of seeing General Grant in his to my mind greatest hour, the only time he was ever beaten, and by a policeman. I told his son, Fred Grant, of it when he became a police commissioner in the nineties, but I do not think he appreciated it. He was not cast in his great father's mold. The occasion I refer to was after the general's second term in the presidency. He was staying at the Fifth Avenue hotel, when one morning the Masonic temple was burned. The fire line was drawn half way down the block toward Fifth avenue, but the police were much hampered by the crowd and were out of patience when I, standing by, saw a man in a great ulster with head buried deep in the collar, a cigar sticking straight out, coming down the street from the hotel. I recognized him at sight as General Grant. The policeman who blocked his way did not. He grabbed him by the collar, swung him about and, hitting him a resounding whack across the back with his club, yelled out:

"What's the matter with you? Don't you see the fire lines? Chase yourself out of here and be quick about it."

The general never said a word. He did not stop to argue the matter. He had run up against a sentinel and when stopped went the other way. That was all. The man had a right to be there; he had none. I was never so much an admirer of Grant as since that day. It was true greatness. A smaller man would have made a row, stood upon his dignity and demanded the punishment of the policeman. As for him, there was probably never so badly frightened a policeman when I told him whom he had clubbed. I will warrant he did not sleep for a week, fearing all kinds of things. No need of it. Grant probably never gave him a thought.—Jacob Riis in Outlook.

He Wasn't Deported.

Shortly after the Chinese exclusion act was passed the secretary of state received a letter from Pennsylvania, signed by a Chinaman. The writer said that he had been interested in this legislation and that he fell within the conditions of this act. He had come to this country under false pretenses, and hence he should be deported immediately. The request was so strange that the secretary of state ordered an investigation. The agent reported a few days later that the Chinaman's statement about the way in which he entered this country was correct and that he should be deported. There was just one drawback to this programme, however. The Chinaman had been convicted of murder and sentenced to life imprisonment.

SAVAGES IN JAPAN

THE HAIRY AINOS AND THEIR RESERVATIONS IN THE EMPIRE.

Odd Customs Practiced by These Aboriginal People of Japan Unique Styles in Baby Names Their Resemblance to Our Indians

The Ainus, generally known to Americans and Europeans as "the hairy Ainos," are the only aboriginal people now living in Japan. They are called "hairy" in contradistinction to the smooth faced Japanese, Koreans and Chinese. Their present home is in Hokkaido, or Yesso, the most northerly part of the empire, although it is supposed that in earlier times they occupied most of the entire country. Ancestors of the Japanese of today found them in possession and by force of superior arms and civilization gradually drove them to the north, much in the same way as the savages were driven back toward the Pacific by the early settlers in America.

The Ainus live today pretty much as the Indians on their reservations in the west. They are still for the most part half savage, and the Japanese name for them, "Yesso," means barbarian. They are very skillful in hunting and fishing, which are their chief occupations. They are under the protection of the imperial government and are entirely separated from the Japanese. The latest census showed that they number very nearly 17,000.

Among the many curious customs of the Ainus perhaps the quaintest is their method of naming their children. They observe a peculiar economy in giving names. The infant must go without a name until it shows itself worthy of bearing one. If it is sickly and not likely to live, it is not considered worth while to waste a name upon it. As each child must by immemorial custom have a brand new name, used by no one in the community, names are scarce and must be guarded. If the child should be given a name borne by some one else, the ghost of the former possessor of the name may come back from the underworld to avenge the slight.

It is customary to take a name from some incident that occurred at the child's birth or it is left to the parents afterward to choose one for it. Should the infant come into the world with a smiling face it might be called Ikishimaburu, which means a smile, or fond parents may call it Kamoissage (a pulling rope of the gods) if they wish their child to be in the special care of the gods.

From the age of 7 to 10 Ainu children of either sex have their heads shaved, but after 11 they are allowed to have long hair and wear the same clothes as grown persons. They wear no clothing unless the weather is very cold.

The favorite and almost exclusive ornament is the earring, usually made of metal. What clothing is worn is made of straw. They never wear shoes or other covering for the feet except as a great luxury and mark of distinction on ceremonious occasions.

The men carry small knives and tobacco pouches, and the women carry small looking glasses and knives. The knife is used as a symbol. The maiden wears it with the blade bare, but when she marries it is worn in a sheath. The women also paint their faces, using a kind of ink for the purpose.

The Ainus live mostly by fishing and hunting. They hunt the bear and deer, catch salmon and other fish and grow potatoes and millet. Whenever they can get it they eat rice, which they regard as the best food, though they do not raise it themselves. Both sexes smoke tobacco and drink liquor.

The marriage customs differ widely from those of the Japanese. The question is first settled between the youth and maiden, who then refer the matter to their parents through a mediator, who should be a relative of the prospective bridegroom. The man must send a present of lacquered ware, which is regarded by them as one of the most precious things in the world. This, however, is reclaimed by him if his wife afterward seeks a divorce.

Ainus live in dwellings of about the same class as those of the American Indians. The rude hut has two windows, one of them for ordinary earthly uses, the other reserved for the entrance of the gods.

Woman is fairly treated and held in deep respect. The man is not allowed to enter the house when the woman is in it alone, and he is not permitted to walk behind a woman. When a man meets a woman, he must salute first, by smoothing his beard and rubbing his hands. Then she responds by touching her nose with a finger of her left hand.

During October the Ainus hold a religious fete, which is called the bear festival, because they sacrifice a bear which has been carefully fostered for three years.

Judicial punishment among the Ainus consists of a severe beating with a stick administered to the culprit. The crimes are generally theft—stealing articles or the wife of a neighbor. As there are eight men to one woman the majority of the males are not married, and wife stealing is very common. The accused is subjected to a long examination by the chief of the community and is then compelled to resort to the ordeal of fire. He must take a stone out of boiling water. If innocent, the Ainus think he will not be injured. If the question cannot be settled in this way, the principals in the dispute must fight it out.

The Ainus are polytheists, though they limit their gods to two, a god of fire and a god of water. The first is called Kabekamol and the latter Hoto-kamol. They, also, like most peoples who have a religious system, believe in some sort of heaven and hell.—Japan and America.

Chalk Wonders.

Few people know what a wonderful object a bit of chalk is when examined under a microscope. Take your knife blade and scrape off a little of the loose powder, catch it on a clean glass slide and place this on the stage of a good table microscope. Use a quarter inch objective lens and illuminate the field with a cone of light from the concave side of the reflector. The powder will be seen to consist of a confused mass of beautiful tiny shells, many of them of the most curious form.

A better way, however, is to rub down a portion of chalk with an old toothbrush in a tumbler half filled with water. If you desire to prepare several slides, rub on about a teaspoonful of the powder. Shake the tumbler briskly, allow the sediment to settle for a moment and then carefully pour off the milky looking water.

Repeat this until the water remains clear, and you will then have left in the bottom only perfect shells or large parts of shells. Take up a small pinch of this deposit and spread it carefully over the center of a glass slide. Dry over a lamp and, if you wish to preserve the slide for future use, mount it in Canada balsam, pressing out the bubbles of air beneath the cover glass.

Celluloid.

The base of celluloid is common paper. By action of sulphuric and nitric acids it is changed to gun cotton, then dried, ground and mixed with from 20 to 40 per cent of camphor, after which it is ground fine, colored with powder colors, cast in sheets, pressed very hard and at last baked between sets of superheated rollers.

Census Enumerator Clawson, Who is also editor of "The Herald," at Howe, Ind. Ty., writes:

To Whom It May Concern—I was a sufferer from stomach trouble until I was induced to try a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin and I want to say that in my opinion it has no equal as a stomach remedy. I had tried many different remedies, but none with the happy results of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

THE ISLAND OF TAHITI.

It May Be Rightly Termed the Paradise of the Pacific.

Picture an island set in a reef of coral of myriad hues—the lagoon of a light green, outside the white foaming breakers the vast ocean of intense blue. On shore are great bunches of coconut palms lifting their plumes in stately magnificence, then there are lanes of trees blossoming in red and yellow flowers, and nestling in their midst are the low thatched houses of the natives. The delightful and healthy climate of the island brings to maturity all the products of the tropics, which are nowhere found in greater fullness and perfection than here. The wayfarer is soothed by the fragrance of sweet smelling flowers and delighted with the abundance of oranges, bananas, breadfruit and coconut which give a perennial supply of food to the natives.

Tahiti may be rightly termed the "paradise of the Pacific" or even the world, as in no other place is there so much variety of scenery. At every turn the constant surprises keep the traveler in a delirium of delight. Sometimes the sea lies before him, the waves wreathed in a foam of white breaking the silence in a continuous roar; on the other side the high, steep mountains in forms of towers, domes and steeples pierce the clouds. Now and then a silvery band of water falls from perpendicular heights to the turbulent stream below. Then you pass under the sheltering shadows of tall interlacing trees which excel even the grandeur of our elm. Farther on you pass through lanes lined with bananas, mango and groves of coconut.—Overland Monthly.

STRIKERS IN CLASH.

Mayor of Canal Dover, O., Accused of Hitting Man With a Club.

ASKED THE SHERIFF FOR HELP.

Later Declared the Town Did Not Need Protection and He Would Deputize Constables—Slight Gains Made by Combine About Pittsburg.

Canal Dover, O., Aug. 27.—There was a slight clash here between the authorities and strikers, when a train stopped at the sheet steel mills and let off a colored waiter, who had been brought from Pittsburg to work at the mill boarding house.

A crowd of strikers at once surrounded the man and demanded his business. The mayor and city police tried to disperse the crowd, and it is claimed, the mayor hit one of the strikers with a club, but this he denied. The colored man was sent out of town last night. The mayor called on the sheriff for help to protect the mill property and persons who desire to go into the mills. The sheriff replied that the town did not need protection and he would deputize constables.

Pittsburg, Aug. 27.—Slight gains were made all along the line by the combine in the local strike situation. This led some of the most prominent manufacturers to declare that the strike was already won by the United States Steel corporation, and that it was only a question of some weeks for the men to realize it. President Shaffer and other Amalgamated officials asserted that gains had been made by the strikers. National Organizer John Pierce said that the strikers had won their fight.

MITCHELL WAS CAUTIOUS.

Declined to Blindly Call Out Miners. Easley and White Not Seeking Magnates.

New York, Aug. 27.—Ralph M. Easley, secretary of the National Civic Federation, and Henry White, secretary of the United Garment Workers of America, arrived here from Pittsburg.

Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, also arrived in the city, coming from Buffalo en route to Washington. Mr. Gompers was in conference with Mr. Easley and Mr. White, but it was said the conference resulted in no plan of action. Mr. Easley said:

"Mr. White and I did not go to Pittsburg to make any proposition to Mr. Shaffer, nor have we been authorized to make any proposition to the steel trust managers. We went there to get information, and, quite by chance, we met Prof. Jenks, the trust expert of the industrial commission, and John Mitchell, president of the United Mine Workers of America, and the four of us went to see President Shaffer. We merely wanted to be informed of the exact situation and see whether there was any opening for the good offices of our conciliation board. Mr. Mitchell, for his part, wanted information because he had been asked to call out 280,000 miners on a sympathetic strike, and was not willing to 'go it blind.' We had no proposition to make, and we did not seek authority to act for the Amalgamated association. We merely made it clear that we were at the service of both sides in an effort to reach a settlement."

"We are ready," Mr. Easley added, "to endeavor to bring the contending factors to an understanding, but we have made no offers to either side. Such an offer might do more harm than good."

Mr. Easley said in conclusion that he did not expect to see Messrs. Morgan or Schwab and that he was not trying to obtain a conference with them.

COMBINE SHEET MILL ORDERED DISMANTLED.

Wheeling, Aug. 27.—Manager Wilson of the Aetna Standard sheet plant of the American Sheet Steel company, received orders from the general offices of the company to dismantle sheet mill No. 1 at this place and ship the machinery to Vandergrift, Pa. The work will be started at once. Mr. Wilson does not know whether or not this is the starting of the carrying out of the threat to take plants from the Wheeling district owing to the strong front made here by the strikers.

KNIGHTS SPECIAL WRECKED; ENGINEER DEAD.

Barnesville, O., Aug. 27.—The Baltimore and Ohio special, running as "second 47," carrying Knapp Commandery No. 40, Knights Templar, from Ridgway, Pa., and Knights from Pittsburg to the Louisville triennial convocation, was wrecked between Barnesville and Spencers. Engineer Milo Francis, of Newark, was killed and Fireman Walter Bosscowen, of Newark, was possibly fatally injured.

GRANT'S RETREAT.

The General Went When a Policeman's Club Pointed the Way.

Speaking of nightsticks reminds me of seeing General Grant in his to my mind greatest hour, the only time he was ever beaten, and by a policeman. I told his son, Fred Grant, of it when he became a police commissioner in the nineties, but I do not think he appreciated it. He was not cast in his great father's mold. The occasion I refer to was after the general's second term in the presidency. He was staying at the Fifth Avenue hotel, when one morning the Masonic temple was burned. The fire line was drawn half way down the block toward Fifth avenue, but the police were much hampered by the crowd and were out of patience when I, standing by, saw a man in a great ulster with head buried deep in the collar, a cigar sticking straight out, coming down the street from the hotel. I recognized him at sight as General Grant. The policeman who blocked his way did not. He grabbed him by the collar, swung him about and, hitting him a resounding whack across the back with his club, yelled out:

"What's the matter with you? Don't you see the fire lines? Chase yourself out of here and be quick about it."

The general never said a word. He did not stop to argue the matter. He had run up against a sentinel and when stopped went the other way. That was all. The man had a right to be there; he had none. I was never so much an admirer of Grant as since that day. It was true greatness. A smaller man would have made a row, stood upon his dignity and demanded the punishment of the policeman. As for him, there was probably never so badly frightened a policeman when I told him whom he had clubbed. I will warrant he did not sleep for a week, fearing all kinds of things. No need of it. Grant probably never gave him a thought.—Jacob Riis in Outlook.

POPULAR SCIENCE.

Mercury's year is only 88 days, that of Venus 225 days and of Mars 687 days.

Cumulus, or thunder clouds, rarely rise over two miles. Seven miles is the outside height for any cloud.

The edge of the moon is so broken by peaks, ridges and valleys that the length of totality during a solar eclipse is affected by them.

The sun's heat raises from the earth 37,000,000 tons of water a minute. To do the same work artificially a cube of coal 200 miles deep, wide and high would have to be burned every second.

The archaic, wasteful "beehive" oven process of making charcoal has been superseded in many parts of Germany by modern methods which save all the ammonia, gas, tar and other products of the wood.

A human body contains some of the small things of nature. The blood, for example, is a colorless liquid in which little red globules are floating. Every drop of it contains about a million of the globules, and they are susceptible of division into smaller globules still.

He Wasn't Deported.

Shortly after the Chinese exclusion act was passed the secretary of state received a letter from Pennsylvania, signed by a Chinaman. The writer said that he had been interested in this legislation and that he fell within the conditions of this act. He had come to this country under false pretenses, and hence he should be deported immediately. The request was so strange that the secretary of state ordered an investigation. The agent reported a few days later that the Chinaman's statement about the way in which he entered this country was correct and that he should be deported. There was just one drawback to this programme, however. The Chinaman had been convicted of murder and sentenced to life imprisonment.

SAVAGES IN JAPAN

THE HAIRY AINOS AND THEIR RESERVATIONS IN THE EMPIRE.

Odd Customs Practiced by These Aboriginal People of Japan Unique Styles in Baby Names Their Resemblance to Our Indians

The Ainu, generally known to Americans and Europeans as "the hairy Ainos," are the only aboriginal people now living in Japan. They are called "hairy" in contradistinction to the smooth faced Japanese, Koreans and Chinese. Their present home is in Hokkaido, or Yesso, the most northerly part of the empire, although it is supposed that in earlier times they occupied most of the entire country. Ancestors of the Japanese of today found them in possession and by force of superior arms and civilization gradually drove them to the north, much in the same way as the savages were driven back toward the Pacific by the early settlers in America.

The Ainu live today pretty much as the Indians on their reservations in the west. They are still for the most part half savage, and the Japanese name for them, "Yesso," means barbarian. They are very skillful in hunting and fishing, which are their chief occupations. They are under the protection of the imperial government and are entirely separated from the Japanese. The latest census showed that they number very nearly 17,000.

Among the many curious customs of the Ainu perhaps the quaintest is their method of naming their children. They observe a peculiar economy in giving names. The infant must go without a name until it shows itself worthy of bearing one. If it is sickly and not likely to live, it is not considered worth while to waste a name upon it. As each child must by immemorial custom have a brand new name, used by no one in the community, names are scarce and must be guarded. If the child should be given a name borne by some one else, the ghost of the former possessor of the name may come back from the underworld to avenge the slight.

It is customary to take a name from some incident that occurred at the child's birth or it is left to the parents afterward to choose one for it. Should the infant come into the world with a smiling face it might be called Ikishimaburu, which means a smile, or fond parents may call it Kamoissage (a pulling rope of the gods) if they wish their child to be in the special care of the gods.

From the age of 7 to 10 Ainu children of either sex have their heads shaved, but after 11 they are allowed to have long hair and wear the same clothes as grown persons. They wear no clothing unless the weather is very cold.

The favorite and almost exclusive ornament is the earring, usually made of metal. What clothing is worn is made of straw. They never wear shoes or other covering for the feet except as a great luxury and mark of distinction on ceremonial occasions.

The men carry small knives and tobacco pouches, and the women carry small looking glasses and knives. The knife is used as a symbolic. The maiden wears it with the blade bare, but when she marries it is worn in a sheath. The women also paint their faces, using a kind of ink for the purpose.

The Ainu live mostly by fishing and hunting. They hunt the bear and deer, catch salmon and other fish and grow potatoes and millet. Whenever they can get it they eat rice, which they regard as the best food, though they do not raise it themselves. Both sexes smoke tobacco and drink liquor.

The marriage customs differ widely from those of the Japanese. The question is first settled between the youth and maiden, who then refer the matter to their parents through a mediator, who should be a relative of the prospective bridegroom. The man must send a present of lacquered ware, which is regarded by them as one of the most precious things in the world. This, however, is reclaimed by him if his wife afterward seeks a divorce.

Ainu live in dwellings of about the same class as those of the American Indians. The rude hut has two windows, one of them for ordinary earthly uses, the other reserved for the entrance of the gods.

Woman is fairly treated and held in deep respect. The man is not allowed to enter the house when the woman is in it alone, and he is not permitted to walk behind a woman. When a man meets a woman, he must salute first, by smoothing his beard and rubbing his hands. Then she responds by touching her nose with a finger of her left hand.

During October the Ainu hold a religious fete, which is called the bear festival, because they sacrifice a bear which has been carefully fostered for three years.

Judicial punishment among the Ainu consists of a severe beating with a stick administered to the culprit. The crimes are generally theft—stealing articles or the wife of a neighbor. As there are eight men to one woman the majority of the males are not married, and wife stealing is very common. The accused is subjected to a long examination by the chief of the community and is then compelled to resort to the ordeal of fire. He must take a stone out of boiling water. If innocent, the Ainu think he will not be injured. If the question cannot be settled in this way, the principals in the dispute must fight it out.

The Ainu are polytheists, though they limit their gods to two, a god of fire and a god of water. The first is called Kabekamol and the latter Hato-kamol. They also, like most peoples who have a religious system, believe in some sort of heaven and hell.—Japan and America.

Chalk Wonders.

Few people know what a wonderful object a bit of chalk is when examined under a microscope. Take your knife blade and scrape off a little of the loose powder, catch it on a clean glass slide and place this on the stage of a good table microscope. Use a quarter inch objective lens and illuminate the field with a cone of light from the concave side of the reflector. The powder will be seen to consist of a confused mass of beautiful tiny shells, many of them of the most curious form.

A better way, however, is to rub down a portion of chalk with an old toothbrush in a tumbler half filled with water. If you desire to prepare several slides, rub on about a teaspoonful of the powder. Shake the tumbler briskly, allow the sediment to settle for a moment and then carefully pour off the milky looking water.

Repeat this until the water remains clear, and you will then have left in the bottom only perfect shells or large parts of shells. Take up a small pinch of this deposit and spread it carefully over the center of a glass slide. Dry over a lamp and, if you wish to preserve the slide for future use, mount it in Canada balsam, pressing out the bubbles of air beneath the cover glass.

Celluloid.

The base of celluloid is common paper. By action of sulphuric and nitric acids it is changed to gun cotton, then dried, ground and mixed with from 20 to 40 per cent of camphor, after which it is ground fine, colored with powder colors, cast in sheets, pressed very hard and at last baked between sets of superheated rollers.

HOME AFFAIRS.

Brief Notes of a Personal Nature And of Matters About Town.

A Daughter Born—A daughter has been born to Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hanson, of College street.

A Ten Pound Baby—Edward Wyman appeared on the street this morning his face covered with smiles, a 10-pound baby girl having arrived at his home last night.

Judgment for Plaintiff—In the court of Justice McCarron last evening the case of J. F. Billingsley against Neill & Ellingham, of Wheeling was heard. Judgment for $5.65 was given the plaintiff.

Pigeons Made Good Time—The pigeons sent to Bellaire yesterday by Ed McDermott and which were liberated by the baggage agent at 2:30 o'clock, made very good time, arriving here at 4 o'clock.

Mrs. Matheny's Funeral—The remains of Mrs. Sarah J. Matheny, who died at the home of her son William, in Pittsburg, Saturday of cancer, arrived in the city this morning on the 10 o'clock train. They were taken direct to Riverview cemetery.

Mercer Making a Record—Mercer pitched another great game yesterday for the Washington team. With yesterday's game Mercer has won the last five games in which he has officiated. He allowed the Cleveland club but six hits and himself secured one of the eight runs made by Washington.

Frightened at Street Car—A spirited horse driven by William Swindells became frightened at a street car on Sixth street, near Jackson, last evening, and, rearing backward the animal tripped and fell. It was assisted to its feet with difficulty and fortunately neither it nor the buggy to which it was attached were any the worse for the mishap.

Case Dismissed—In the court of Justice McLane last night the case of John Daley against Henry Heverley was dismissed at the cost of the plaintiff. It will be remembered Heverley sued Daley last week, and the case of Daley against Heverley this week was a counter action. Heverley, it was alleged, took bean poles and other garden materials from Daley, but the court could not see it that way.

TEACHERS' INSTITUTE

Great interest is being taken in the institute and there is every indication that it will be carried through to a successful finish. East Liverpool is represented by Superintendent R. E. Rayman and a number of teachers.

PROTESTS DON'T COUNT

THE STATE FAIR WILL BE OPEN TO SUNDAY VISITORS.

Rev. E. E. Rexford Takes Issue With His Ministerial Brethren.

Columbus, Aug. 27.—Rev. E. E. Rexford, of this city, who is on the program for the open Sunday at the state fair, locked horns with some of his ministerial brethren last night. In the course of conversation with Secretary Miller, of the state board of agriculture, he managed to say some things which, if correctly reported, are calculated to rouse the ire of the other ministers of the gospel in this city.

Beside Mr. Rexford, President W. O. Thompson, of the Ohio State university, in this city, was on the program to make an address to the crowds which are expected to be present on the open Sunday. Yesterday he notified the board of agriculture he would not take part in the ceremonies. As a result the official program which was issued yesterday did not contain his name, and to avoid comment and criticism the names of the other ministers of the gospel who are to appear were also omitted. Mr. Rexford did not understand why his name had been left off the program and inquired of the state board.

"I believe that it is right to open the fair on Sunday," he said, "and I do not propose to get my conviction from a lot of old women and school children over the state. I have looked over the so-called 'protests' which have been filed with the board against opening the fair, and find that they are signed by 'Mamie,' 'Jessie,' 'Nora' and other feminine diminutives, indicating that the signers are all Sunday school girls, and do not represent the sentiment of the state at all. Further, I have no doubt that many a protest might have been obtained in Bethlehem against the Sabbath breaking of Christ our Lord if anyone had bothered to get them."

As a result of Mr. Rexford's position the state board has finally declared that it will pay no attention to the protests procured by the Ohio Sabbath league, but will keep the fair open on Sunday, as originally announced.

A BIG SUCCESS

St. Stephen's Sunday School Picnic Largely Attended And Thoroughly Enjoyed.

St. Stephen's Sunday school picnic was held at Rock Springs park today and was a decided success. The children met in the parish building at 9:30 o'clock this morning and marched to the church, where a short service was conducted by the rector, Rev. Edwin Weary.

From the church the little ones, about 200 in number, marched to Third street, where they boarded cars and were conveyed to the park.

A handsome Sunday school silk banner was carried by one of the children at the head of the line of march.

The parents of the children are all members of St. Stephen's church and joined them in the sports at the park. All were given free rides on the merry-go-round and roller coaster and candy in large quantities was distributed among the juveniles. A large attendance was present and all enjoyed themselves in the fullest measure.

HUMANE OFFICER

Makes Information Against a Father Accused of Abusing a Son.

Information was made in the court of Justice McLane this morning, charging Sidney Starkey with abusing and mistreating a young son.

The case was reported to Humane Agent Miller several days ago, and an investigation was at once commenced, the result of which was that Miller secured a dozen or more witnesses who were willing to testify.

The defendant was notified this morning and signified his determination to fight the charge. It is said that the humane officer was not expecting this and that it is just possible the case may be dropped. Starkey was notified to appear this evening, however, and it is likely the action will either be pushed or withdrawn at that time.

A Coming Wedding.

Lisbon, Aug. 27.—(Special)—Cards are out announcing the approaching marriage of Charles L. Coburn, chief clerk in County Auditor Adams' office, and Miss Alfaretta French, daughter of County Commissioner J. H. French. The wedding will take place September 4.

River Again Falling.

After reaching a stage of 7 1/2 feet the river began to recede last night, and the marks this morning registered 7 1/2 feet. The Gillett brought a tow of sand to this city and the Clipper passed down with a tow of coal this morning.

A Great Company.

A great company will present H. V. Esmond's comedy drama, "When We Were Twenty-One," at the Grand Opera House tomorrow night. The play is delightful and spicy in humor. It is written in a vein of true light comedy, pitched upon the highest plane. It is the work of a master hand. It tempts the tear to fall upon the lip of laughter, and has been pronounced by the press and public everywhere it has been seen the greatest play of modern times. 62-h

A Fish and Lizard Story.

One afternoon I thought I would go down the river and troll. I had on my hook a live minnow and in a little while had a strike, and I hooked my first fish, which seemed to be quite a large one. I reeled him where I could see him and found it was a large pike 25 or 30 inches long. I pulled him up to my boat, but when I lifted him from the water he was as light as a feather. I measured him and found he was just 30 inches long and should have weighed eight or nine pounds, while he only weighed two. He was just skin and bones. I killed him, took my knife and cut him open and found a live lizard, five inches long, in his stomach. The reptile was as black as coal and very lively, living 24 hours after I took him from his prison.—Field and Stream.

Without a Ring.

Fashions FOR Children

When the little girls get their new fall bonnets on, it will be necessary to look for them like the needle in the haystack that we have always heard of, for these bonnets surpass anything of the kind that I have ever seen. They are so big and so complicated that one scarcely knows what to call the special style. Some shown me today were so convoluted and twisted and tortured into different shapes that I could not keep the surgical description of a "compound, comminuted fracture" out of my mind. These are all that and more. The silk is of rich and always beautiful faile, and this is shirred so that the shirrings make the crown, and where the gathers are put in there are full ruffles of crepe lisse. The frill to the bonnets is about three inches wide, and the edge is stiffened, so there is where the convolutions come in. The frill is made double over the forehead and is in some cases lined with pale tinted silk, but is always edged with the crepe lisse frillings, or really ruelings, since the edges are curled under. There is a false plume made of chiffon set on the top of the bonnet, and some of them have two and three. These match the face lining. The frills are just four times as long as the size of the bonnet at the face. Ribbon strings are tied in a big bow under the chin. Some have capes and others have none. I shall mention but one in detail. This is for a child of 3. There is a diamond shaped and stiffened crown of pale blue china silk, and around this is a soft frill of the same between one and two inches wide. This stands out all around the crown. The body of the bonnet is of brown silk tucked closely. The frill in front is most ample and made of brown silk lined with the blue, and directly along the edge is a row of ecru lace applique. On the top is a looped bow of brown double faced satin ribbon. Strings are of the same. The size of the bonnets is so disproportionate that they are almost ridiculous. Yet when I saw a rosy little face in one I was instantly converted.

The two pictured bits of bonnets are made one of gray velvet and the other of gray felt, and both are trimmed with chiffon, the velvet one having pink chiffon and the felt pale blue and also white. White plumes also decorate it on the crown, and there is a funny bonnet of doubled silk and two plumes, both white. One is laid across the crown, and the other is brought down the side of the bonnet. Strings of pale blue finish what is certainly a remarkable production. This is very inappropriately called a Gainsborough. The other bonnet has the brim raised

We may as well talk a little about the rest of the children's attire. White muslin frocks for the tiny tots will always be the best, but they are so fine and so daintily made that they come too expensive for anything but best. For every day gingham and like goods are employed. There are three distinct styles of shapes for dresses for very small children. One is the French shape, which comes down over the hips very low, and the Mother Hubbard shape for children under 7. Besides these is the regular baby waist shape, and this is the most useful of the three, for it can be worn by children of 8 as well as by the baby.

For outdoor wear for fall there will be some of the prettiest little coats that have ever been made. Some are of velvet, others of rough wool and more of the ribbed velutina, which is such excellent stuff to wear.

I like little boys better than I do girls, and so I will not forget them, as too many do. One suit for a boy of 5 or 6 is of navy blue velutina, in sailor style. The big collar was of white linen, and the deep cuffs matched. Russian blouses are still in style for small boys. One of bluish gray has the stitching on the inevitable sailor collar, done in strapping of white. The belt is also white. This kind of suit is handsome, comfortable and dressy for boys. There are military overcoats for the little fellows made of blue, with velvet collar and capuchin hoods. The eagle must roost on the left sleeve, or no boy would want it. Another handsome overcoat for boys is called the little duke. It is of very dark melton or cloth, and down the front is a wide strip of black astrakhan, with fancy black silk frogs. The cuffs and collar are of the astrakhan. It is a fine coat. The size is so adjusted that the bottom of the coat reaches just to the knees.

HOME AFFAIRS.

Brief Notes of a Personal Nature And of Matters About Town.

A Daughter Born—A daughter has been born to Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hanson, of College street.

A Ten Pound Baby—Edward Wyman appeared on the street this morning his face covered with smiles, a 10-pound baby girl having arrived at his home last night.

Judgment for Plaintiff—In the court of Justice McCarron last evening the case of J. F. Billingsley against Nellie & Ellingham, of Wheeling, was heard. Judgment for $5.65 was given the plaintiff.

Pigeons Made Good Time—The pigeons sent to Bellaire yesterday by Ed McDermott and which were liberated by the baggage agent at 2:30 o'clock, made very good time, arriving here at 4 o'clock.

Mrs. Matheny's Funeral—The remains of Mrs. Sarah J. Matheny, who died at the home of her son William, in Pittsburg, Saturday of cancer, arrived in the city this morning on the 10 o'clock train. They were taken direct to Riverview cemetery.

Mercer Making a Record—Mercer pitched another great game yesterday for the Washington team. With yesterday's game Mercer has won the last five games in which he has officiated. He allowed the Cleveland club but six hits and himself secured one of the eight runs made by Washington.

Frightened at Street Car—A spirited horse driven by William Swindells became frightened at a street car on Sixth street, near Jackson, last evening, and, rearing backward the animal tripped and fell. It was assisted to its feet with difficulty and fortunately neither it nor the buggy to which it was attached were any the worse for the mishap.

Case Dismissed—In the court of Justice McLane last night the case of John Daley against Henry Heverley was dismissed at the cost of the plaintiff. It will be remembered Heverley sued Daley last week, and the case of Daley against Heverley this week was a counter action. Heverley, it was alleged, took bean poles and other garden materials from Daley, but the court could not see it that way.

TEACHERS' INSTITUTE

Opens at East Palestine With Prospects of a Profitable Session.

East Palestine, Aug. 27.—(Special)—The Columbiana county teachers' institute held its opening session here this morning. The attendance is not so large as was expected, but it is thought that many others will arrive tomorrow.

Opening addresses were made by Dr. T. B. Noss, of California, Pa., and Dr. E. W. Chubb. Great interest is being taken in the institute and there is every indication that it will be carried through to a successful finish. East Liverpool is represented by Superintendent R. E. Rayman and a number of teachers.
